Viet peace meet ends; sides mum

PARIS (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger conferred with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho for 3 hours and 45 minutes today and then flew back to Washington, ending a negotiating session that the White House said was to complete a Vietnam peace agreement.

Kissinger and Tho emerged from their secret meeting and posed shaking hands in front of the International Conference Center on Avenue Kleber in sight of the Arc de Triomphe.

But they gave no indication whether the cease-fire agreement was now complete or whether further decisions were required from President Nixon or

President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam.

It was noted, however, that official U.S. and North Vietnamese photographers were admitted to part of the session.

It was Kissinger's and Tho's first meeting there, their previous negotiations having been held in suburban villas with each acting as host alternately. Some observers concluded that the move was another indication that agreement was near.

There was no official word on whether a date has been set for signature of the agreement. Outgoing

Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird hinted to newsmen in Washington Monday night that the text may be initiated Wednesday.

Kissinger returned to Paris Monday night and went into immediate conference with Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam of South Vietnam. They met again today before Kissinger's session with Tho.

Both Lam and the Viet Cong's foreign minister, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, were excluded from the secret talks between Kissinger and Tho.

Reports from Saigon said President Nguyen Van Thieu has approved the agreement in principle but may still have to be consulted on the final wording.

BULLETIN

President Nixon will address the nation by television and radio at 10 p.m. EST tonight—presumably to announce the initialing of the Vietnam peace agreement.

Highlights of Johnson presidency

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some of the highlights of the presidency of Lyndon B. Johnson, who died Monday at 64:

1963

Nov. 22: Lyndon Baines Johnson becomes the 36th President of the United States upon the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas, Tex. A little more than two hours after Kennedy was shot, Johnson takes the oath of office, administered by federal Judge Sarah Hughes in the cabin of the presidential jet plane, Air Force One, at Love Field, Dallas.

1964

May 22: In an address to University of Michigan graduates at Ann Arbor, Mich., the President proposes for the first time the building of a "Great Society" in which cities would be revitalized, natural resources protected and educational opportunities assured all children.

July 2: Johnson signs the Civil Rights Act, the most sweeping civil rights legislation since Reconstruction. After months of parliamentary maneuvering and often acrimonious debate, a bipartisan majority in both houses of Congress passed a more far-reaching civil rights bill than President Kennedy had recommended in June 1963.

Aug. 5: The President asks Congress to pass a joint resolution assuring him of full support "for all necessary action" he might have to take to protect U. S. armed forces in Southeast Asia. The request followed two attacks within three days on U.S. destroyers by North Vietnamese PT boats in the Gulf of Tonkin.

Nov. 3: Johnson wins election to his own 4-year term, scoring one of the most overwhelming political victories in the history of the presidency. He gets 61 per cent of the vote and carries 44 states and the District of Columbia against six states for Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, the G.O.P. nominee.

April 7: In a speech at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Md., the President offers to take part in "unconditional discussions" about Vietnam with the governments concerned. He also offers to let North Vietnam participate in a vast, billion-dollar economic development plan for Indochina.

April 28: Johnson orders U.S. troops, into the Dominican Republic, to protect U.S. lives and property, in the largest U.S. intervention in the Western Hemisphere.

July 30: Johnson signs the Medicare bill at the Harry S. Truman Library in Independence, Mo. The new law is intended to help 19 million Americans pay their bills for health services.

Aug. 5: The President signs the Voting Rights Act of 1965, 104 years to the day Abraham Lincoln had signed a bill freeing slaves who had been pressed into Confederate service.

1966

Feb. 5: Accompanied by his leading listed the official cause of death as coronary thrombosis.

Hiegar's autopsy showed that the former president had severe coronary artery disease, with complete occlusion — closure — of two of three major arteries to the heart. A third artery was about 60 per cent occluded.

The former President had a history of heart trouble dating to 1955. He suffered what was termed as a major heart attack in April 1972 and was hospitalized with chest pains last July.

With him at death were three Secret Service agents, Dr. David J. Abbott of Johnson City, the plane's pilot and the wife of the foreman of the sprawling LBJ ranch, to which he retired after leaving the White House.

As Johnson was flown to San Antonio, his wife, Lady Bird, was contacted by radio telephone in a car about a block from the LBJ Library, about 80 miles from the family ranch. She immediately went by helicopter to San Antonio, arriving at Brooke hospital before her husband's body. A family spokesman said Mrs. Johnson had prepared breakfast for the former president before going to Austin on business. The spokesman quoted her as saying, "His health seemed no different than it had been recently. He seemed a bit quieter but was in good spirits."

After spending more than an hour in San Antonio, Mrs. Johnson returned to Austin and joined her daughter, Luci, and son-in-law, Patrick J. Nugent, for the return to the family ranch to discuss funeral arrangements.

Nixon leads nation in tribute to LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — Led by President Nixon, the nation paid tribute today to Lyndon B. Johnson as the president whose domestic achievements were overshadowed until his death by the war he couldn't end.

"No man had greater dreams for America than Lyndon Johnson," said Nixon of his predecessor in the White House. "Even as we mourn his death, we are grateful for his life, which did so much to make those dreams into realities."

In a refrain echoing through the appraisals by many of Johnson's associates, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said:

"As President, his brilliant leadership on the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965 have earned him a place in the history of civil rights alongside Abraham Lincoln."

"And his efforts to help the poor, the sick and the oppressed stand out as landmarks of America's concern for those too weak to help themselves."

Former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, who coalesced antiwar forces behind his surprisingly strong challenge to Johnson's expected bid for re-nomination by the Democratic party in 1968, said of the dead president:

"If he was to be faulted, it was not for lack of dedication or lack of commitment, but for taking upon himself or to himself too much of the burden and of the responsibilities of government."

On March 31, 1968, Johnson shocked the nation with the announcement that he would neither seek nor accept renomination.

Johnson's vice president, Hubert H. Humphrey, reflected on that day:

"He and Lady Bird, Luci and her husband came up to our apartment. He said 'could I talk to you alone?' Then he told me what he was going to do. He said 'I've done everything I could to try and end the war. I've tried the Pope, I've tried the Russians, I've tried the Poles, the French . . . I'm going to make another supreme effort. Hubert, I want peace in Vietnam more than anything.'"

But Humphrey recalled that Johnson believed he could not bring the warring parties into peace negotiations unless he withdrew from the campaign and purged the bid of any political taint.

Johnson's defense secretary, Robert S. McNamara, said:

"Whatever history's verdict may be on the Johnson role in Vietnam, I have no doubt that history will record President Johnson's actions to redress the discriminations which had been suffered by the poor, the blacks and the disadvantaged as one of the most important advances by our society in this century."

Abortion ruling attacked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roman Catholic church leaders have deplored the Supreme Court decision guaranteeing American women the right to have medical abortions during the first six months of pregnancy.

Otherwise, there was mixed reaction to the court's 7-2 ruling Monday that the states may interfere with this "right of privacy" only in about the last three months of pregnancy, when the unborn child is developed enough to live outside the mother.

John Cardinal Krol of Philadelphia, the highest-ranking Catholic prelate in the United States, called the decision "an unspeakable tragedy" and said "it is hard to think of any decision in the 200 years of our history which has had more disastrous implications for our stability as a civilized society."

Patrick Cardinal O'Boyle of

Washington, D.C., called the decision a catastrophe for America. "It is a shocking display of a few men arrogating too themselves the judgment at what stage the life of an unborn child may be terminated," he said.

Gov. David Hall of Oklahoma said the issue is one for state legislatures. "I deeply regret this additional intrusion by the federal government into matters the state should resolve," he said.

On the other hand, the leading proponent of liberalized abortions in the California legislature said the decision makes "abortion on request" available throughout the nation.

"The state has no overriding interest which would permit it to interfere in this very private decision," said State Sen. Anthony Beilenson, a Beverly Hills Democrat.

State Rep. Sarah Weddington of Texas, a leading figure in the lawsuit that led to Monday's ruling, said in Austin she was "very pleased because of the impact this decision will have on the lives of the many women who in the past have suffered . . ."

The ruling struck down a Texas law that had made it a crime for doctors to terminate pregnancies except "for the purpose of saving the life of the mother."

The court also disapproved by a 7-2 vote provisions of a Georgia law. These required advance approval of a hospital committee and concurrence of two additional physicians before a woman could have an abortion recommended by her doctor.

Thirty other states have laws similar to the Texas statute. Thirteen additional states have laws like Georgia's. Since the handful of remaining states already permitted medical abortions virtually upon demand, the ruling will have nationwide impact.

The court's majority opinion, by Justice Harry A. Blackmun, rested largely on the "right of privacy" and the medical view that in the early stages of pregnancy an abortion is no more of a risk than birth itself.

The state attorney general's office won't say, but some Ohioans believe the state's abortion law has gone out the window as a result of a U.S. Supreme Court decision on the rights of women to obtain an abortion during the first three months of pregnancy.

Monday's ruling by the high court came on a challenge to a Texas abortion law.

Flu situation seems better

School administrators agree that any tendency toward "epidemic" proportions in absenteeism because of London flu or other winter-time maladies has been reversed and, although absences are not back to normal, it's "better than last week."

Miami Trace High School has about 15 per cent absent today, county elementary schools around 10 per cent, Washington High School is a little above normal, but below earlier figures, Junior High had 54 absent Tuesday morning, about half last week's absentees, and the city elementary schools have maintained normal attendance throughout the period.

Armco's Metal Products Division reported very little change from normal in absenteeism; Mac Tool, Inc. said they have more absences than normal and "several people working who should be home". Pennington Bread, Inc. reported only normal absences.

The News in Brief

LIBERTY CENTER, Ohio (AP) — Investigators from the state fire marshal's office are probing a blaze that swept through a grain elevator complex here early today.

Fire Chief Burdette Spiess said the fire, which destroyed the older portion of the Liberty Center Elevator Association complex, was of "suspicious origin."

MENTOR, Ohio (AP)—Lake County commissioners are apparently headed for a showdown with a county juvenile court judge who has refused to trim his court budget.

Judge Ross D. Avellone's $557,291 budget for 1973 is about 10 per cent of the county's total budget of $5.5 million, and Commissioner John Platz Jr. said the amount "is the biggest inflated budget in the county."

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Mayor Ralph Perk has threatened to send his own investigators to Washington, D.C., to learn why Cleveland mounted policemen weren't permitted to march in President Nixon's inaugural parade.

The 12 men and horses arrived in Washington by van, but the men said they were prevented from unloading the horses by an unidentified Army colonel.

Volcano eruption endangers 5,000

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — An armada of fishing boats and planes evacuated 5,000 Icelanders early today from a small island off the southeast coast after a volcano on the island erupted for the first time in history.

By dawn the lava had reached the outskirts of Vestmannaeyjar, the only town on the island of Heymaey. But by then only 300 of the 5,300 islanders remained to be taken off.

The sea around Heymaey was lit up like a busy street by the lights of the hundreds of fishing boats the government rushed to the island southeast off Reykjavik.

Although the lava had not reached the houses of Vestmannaeyjar yet, but several were ablaze from the heat of the flow.

The islanders drove their livestock and pets to the harbor and the airstrip in hopes of getting them away. There were no casualties reported and no panic.

One islander, Jon Stefansson, said he was getting up to go fishing at 2 a.m. when he heard "terrible noises."

"Then I heard a siren from the fire station and thought there must be a fire somewhere in town," he continued. "The volcano just didn't enter my mind. But when I looked out of the window, it was plain what had happened."

Women, children and hospital patients were flown out despite a rain of hot ash falling on the airstrip. The other residents left by boat. Officials for a time feared the harbor at Vestmannaeyjar might be closed by the oozing lava, but this danger did not materialize.

Vestmannaeyjar is only 150 yards from Helgafell, the volcano that had not erupted since the Vikings discovered Iceland in 864 A.D. But the first outpouring of lava flowed away from the town and into the Atlantic, and it was some time before the flow moved toward the houses.

Abortion ruling

wishes to have an abortion, but might be blocked from having it. Wolman says this would be one way of finding out whether the ruling makes Ohio's law null and void.

Dr. Myron Moorehead of Columbus says he is not opposed to being the doctor in any test case to have the state law ruled unconstitutional.

Dr. David McCalmont of the Abortion Education Society called the ruling, "wonderful news." He said it would take care of "80 per cent of our problems." He referred to the 14,000 Ohio women who left the state for New York during 1972 to obtain abortions during their first three months of pregnancy.

Presently, Ohio law bars abortions except in cases where a mother's life is endangered by the pregnancy.

Despite lack of an official decision on the Ohio law, two physicians have suggested that doctors in the state will consider the Supreme Court's ruling to be a go-ahead to perform abortions.

One of the two, who said he has skirted the law and performed abortions in Ohio, said he believes the decision "effectively eliminates the Ohio abortion law. I believe there will be some doctors who will start performing abortions immediately, but I don't know who the first one will be."

Psychiatrist Adolph Haas, who also says he has skirted the law by signing affidavits stating that a woman would commit suicide unless she was aborted, agreed.

Dr. Edward G. Kilroy, coordinator of the Ohio Right to Life Society said his group will seek new legislation within the limits of the decision to prohibit abortions.

The president of the Cleveland Society of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, Dr. Richard Nowak, said Monday, "there are all kinds of patients and all kinds of doctors, so the Supreme Court should have provided some kind of built-in guidelines and consultations. Without any disciplining," he continued, "this situation could get out of hand."

Cuyahoga County Prosecutor John Corrigan paints one picture of results of the decision.

"In my opinion," Corrigan says, "the decision has licensed unscrupulous doctors to run abortion mills for the first three months of pregnancy." He adds, "... there are an unscrupulous few who will do abortions strictly for profit, without regard to the ramifications."

Johnson funeral

Robb, made plans to fly to Texas from Charlottesville, Va., where Robb is a third-year law student at the University of Virginia. A plane was provided by President Nixon.

The news of Johnson's death drew immediate tributes from the White House, the halls of Congress and the streets of America.

Johnson's death came 28 days after that of former President Harry S. Truman, leaving the nation without a living former chief executive. Nixon ordered flags on all federal buildings, already lowered to mark Truman's death, flown at half staff for 30 days following Johnson's death.

At a news conference in Austin several hours after Johnson's death, Tom Johnson, a former business associate and news secretary not related to the family, gave this account of the seizure:

At 4:50 p.m. EST, Johnson, who routinely took a nap after lunch, called the ranch switchboard and asked that a Secret Service agent be sent to his bedroom. Agents Ed Nowland and Harry Harris dashed 100 yards from their quarters with a portable resuscitator. They arrived in about two minutes and began to treat the former president. The third agent, Mike Howard, arrived within minutes and the trio attempted mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and external heart massage.

"They found Johnson lying on his back, on the floor next to his bed," Tom Johnson said. "They said it appeared he was dead."

Unable to revive Johnson, the agents summoned Abbott and with Mrs. Dave Malachuk and pilot Barney Hewitt, they set out for San Antonio in the Johnson plane.

Abbott pronounced Johnson dead after the aircraft landed at San Antonio. The finding was confirmed aboard the plane by Dr. George McGranahan, who took over as Johnson's personal physician last July.

It was aboard a plane in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963 that Vice President Johnson was sworn in as 36th President of the United States after Kennedy was gunned down during a motorcade through city streets. Johnson, who was riding in the motorcade behind Kennedy, was not injured.

Five days after the assassination of Kennedy, which cast a pall of despair across the nation, Johnson went before a joint session of Congress and in a speech interrupted 30 times by applause, the Democrat from Texas declared:

"An assassin's bullet has thrust upon me the awesome burden of the presidency. I am here today to say that I need your help. I cannot bear this burden alone. I need the help of all Americans and all America."

He went on to ask congressional action on civil rights and social legislation left in the seed stage by Kennedy's death.

The presidency culminated the career of the one-time school teacher who was born in a three-room home near Stonewall on Aug. 27, 1908, the eldest of five children of Rebekah Baines and Samuel Ealy Johnson. The oil boom had not yet come to Texas and the Johnson family was extremely poor.

From his father, Johnson inherited a love for politics. Both Samuel Johnson and his grandfather, Sam Johnson Sr., served in the Texas legislature.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Weather Service's summary of Ohio weather:

Heavy cloudiness, cold temperatures, brisk winds and some light drizzle or snow flurries described the weather over Ohio Monday night and early this morning. Temperatures were in the 30s early Tuesday morning and expected to change little during the day. Precipitation was very spotty and very light with no accumulations.

Cloudy skies with brisk winds will continue today with a chance of a few light snow flurries in the northern counties and some light drizzle in the central and southern counties mainly this morning.

Afternoon temperatures will be mainly in the upper 30s and lower 40s. Cloudy to partly cloudy skies tonight will allow temperatures by Wednesday morning to lower into the 20s. Some sunshine will be visible at times on Wednesday but temperatures will continue cold with readings once again in the upper 30s and 40s.

The extended outlook through Saturday indicates slow warming with daytime highs in the 40s and 50s and night time lows mainly in the 30s. Little or no precipitation is forecast through Saturday.

defeated by Johnson in 1964, said: "The country has lost a great political leader, a dedicated American, and I have lost a friend, the memory of whose friendship I will forever cherish."

Reactions of shock and sadness—many coupled with praise — came from Ohio's political leaders almost immediately after the announcement that former President Lyndon Johnson had died of an apparent heart attack Monday.

Democrats and Republicans, alike, praised the last living ex-President, singling out his efforts in the area of social and civil rights reform.

The state's leading Democrat, Gov. John Gilligan, who served as a congressman during Johnson's presidency referred to Johnson's passing as "tragic."

"Lyndon Johnson's career was one of devoted service to the people of the nation he loved," Gilligan said. "He served in the Congress nearly 30 years before assuming the awesome burdens of the presidency while the nation was in deep shock over the murder of President Kennedy."

"Those of us who served under him and all Americans mourn his loss. I know all Ohioans join me in expressing our deepest sympathy to Mrs. Johnson and to their two daughters in this time of sorrow."

Former Gov. James Rhodes, a Republican leading Ohio during the Johnson administration, noted that Johnson "was a personal friend."

"Lyndon B. Johnson's place in history will be written by his pronounced and profound record for social justice for all mankind," Rhodes said. "In America he was a tireless worker for his concept of government and a statesman who believed in close cooperation in the states of the union."

Red defense chief shows he's alive

PARIS (AP) — Vo Nguyen Giap, North Vietnam's defense minister, says reports of his death during U.S. bombing raids on Haiphong last month are greatly exaggerated.

"As you can see, I am alive and well," Giap said during a filmed interview shown on French television Monday.

Stock list declines

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market did not respond today to a report that a Vietnam peace agreement had been initiated.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 4.36 to 1014.45.

Before the peace report it had been down 3.91 on word of an impending rise in banks' prime interest rate and drops in the dollar's exchange value abroad today. The Dow made a mild nudge upward on the peace report, then settled back down.

On the New York Stock Exchange, declines held a 783-to-390 lead over advances, with 1,610 issues changing hands in rather light trading.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,400 common stocks was down 0.32 to 63.86. At the American Stock Exchange, the price-change index was off 0.06 to 26.18.

What Is a Bank?

A bank is many things, some of which you may have never considered. Primarily a bank is a VEHICLE FOR COMMUNITY SERVICE.

Study the picture at left. The services listed at the top are ways in which our customers are putting money INTO the bank. That helps them—as a service and through interest which is paid on deposits.

It helps you, too, directly or indirectly. Money put in the bank comes OUT in the form of various types of loans. Most of this money is being used and spent right here in Washington C. H. and Fayette County creating new businesses, new homes, more jobs, etc.

We are proud of our customers, proud of how the people of Fayette County and Washington C. H. have helped themselves, their friends and the entire community by using the bank. You have truly turned the bank into a vital VEHICLE FOR COMMUNITY SERVICE.

Sound food labeling rules

The Food and Drug Administration may have bitten off more than it can chew in ordering broad revision of food labeling practices. The enormous program it has undertaken relies on voluntary compliance rather than compulsion, and the FDA does not have anything like sufficient personnel to police the new rules.

In this connection officials of the agency do make a persuasive point. It is that competition probably will give food processors a strong incentive to comply. The assumption is that as consumers grow accustomed to labels giving them nutritional data on packaged food they will demand this. That would place non-complying manufacturers at a disadvantage.

On balance, there is much cause for gratification in the FDA orders affecting most processed food. When the regulations have taken hold, consumers will be able to tell quickly just what a package contains: the number of servings, a breakdown of protein, carbohydrate and fat content, the number of calories, and the percentage of "recommended daily allowances" of proteins, vitamins, minerals.

This is the sort of information now denied to the consumer in many cases. Other regulations are aimed at elimination of false or misleading dietary and therapeutic claims.

At present there is a lot of guesswork about buying processed food. The new FDA rules will go a long way toward eliminating this.

The one major problem, as suggested above, lies in the extent of compliance with the regulations. If the voluntary compliance approach does not work out satisfactorily, then compulsion will have to be tried. Detailed labeling of processed food is important enough to warrant strict enforcement if necessary.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Europeans say pot is dangerous

I'll never forget the anguished wail of a liberal housewife whose teen-age children, going one beyond her in permissiveness, had nibbled at experimenting with harsher drugs. "Gawd," she said, "I wish they'd go back to booze."

That was in the high Woodstock Nation period, when the use of LSD, heroin and other hard drugs was cresting. Since then, we are reliably informed by our high school and college friends, there has been a general tendency to draw back from extremes to the pot-smoking middle.

The use of marijuana, or the cannabis plant, remains in the mode as something that is "safe"; it is, so a sizeable coterie of the young insists, no more dangerous or addicting than the gin favored in Scott Fitzgerald's romantic heyday.

The chance that we are drawing closer to the time that the use of marijuana, if not the actual sales, will be legalized has been enhanced by a curious concatenation. On the Left, the Ralph Nader-blessed Consumers Union (which can find no value in Vitamin E, a dietary supplement endorsed by more than one heart specialist) has put out a report calling for the legalization of pot. On the Right, Bill Buckley's National Review has published a pro-pot article, and chairman Bill has himself commended the article to the extent that he finds it unrealistic to treat cannabis smokers as criminals.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

Mexico stresses its reforms

MEXICO CITY — Should anyone north of the border be taking notice, this happens to be a moment of historic change. The Latin America of the guerrilla, the romantic revolutionary, is all but gone.

Fidel Castro is no longer exporting his failed revolution. The belief here is that Washington and Havana are privately drawing together not only over the hijacking issue but in a broader context that could lead eventually to at least a limited renewal of relations.

Che Guevara's attempt to foment a revolution in Bolivia came to a pitiful end. He was the last hero of the romantic revolution, with the posters showing his dark, handsome face on Paris kiosks and in Tokyo Socialist halls. The campesinos, the depressed peasantry, simply did not respond to his call to rise up against the oppressors.

The experiment going forward here in Mexico is designed to achieve a new social and economic base. President Luis Echeverria Alvarez in the first two years of his six-year term has introduced a whole series of reforms from taxation to improved land use and an assault on pollution which is so visible in this smog-ridden city.

THE EAGER young men Echeverria has drawn into his government, such as 32-year-old Fausto Zapata, under secretary of the presidency, like to think a parallel exists with the New Deal of Franklin D. Roosevelt. If the vast gulf between the poor — more than 55 per cent tied to the land — and the very rich can be narrowed, a healthy democratic society can take root. This will be a model not only in Latin America but for the Third World for which President Echeverria is a highly articulate spokesman.

Time is all-important. Given 10 years of steady progress, the transition can take place. But if the dead weight of the past frustrates the reforms, the future is dark indeed. The military dictatorship in Brazil and Argentina, with their periodic outbursts of terrorism, are a portent.

Echeverria, who looks like an earnest professor of sociology, talks of the urgent need to prevent a second colonialism. This will come if foreign investors are allowed to take over the Mexican economy. His program, therefore, calls for 51 per cent of Mexican ownership in foreign corporations, with large areas restricted entirely to domestic operation.

A broader and deeper concern is with the plight of the Third World — Latin America, Asia, Africa — as the supplier of raw materials for the developed world of the United States, Western Europe, Japan and the Soviet Union. Prices for those materials tend to move steadily down while with inflation in the industrialized nations the price of manufactured goods exported to the Third World goes steadily up.

THIS, the president says with intense conviction, makes slaves of those who perform sell on a depressed market the raw stuff that fuels the machines of the advanced nations. One answer is for the United Nations to set a scale of investment which the developed nations would put into the underdeveloped world. This would

Dear Abby:

No redress for dress code

DEAR ABBY: Man, do we have a problem! About 100 junior and senior high school students in Oklahoma need your help. Ours is a smalltown school and the school board is so old fashioned it isn't even funny. They set up a dress code for girls saying we can't wear our dresses any shorter than three inches above our kneecaps. And they even tell the boys how long to wear their hair. They can't even have it any longer than their collars.

Abby, everyone is so uptight here they are failing in their work. Do you honestly believe that a person's dress affects his behavior?

IN JAIL IN MULBERRY, OKLA.

DEAR IN: I hate to let you down, but serious studies show that a person's dress DOES affect his behavior. Kids who dress like they're going to a hay ride are more inclined to horse around.

DEAR ABBY: I came up with what I thought was a brilliant idea in the way of New Year's resolutions for married folk.

The husband should make up a list of resolutions for his wife to follow, and the wife should make up a list of resolutions for her husband to follow. For example, he might have me resolve never to ask him to stop on his way home and pick up something from the store, because that's my job and I have all day to do it. And I might have him resolve always to call me and tell me if he knows he'll be late getting home.

My husband told me he thought it was very foolish idea and I should forget it.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

With your indulgence, we the Fayette County Board of Commissioners would like to submit our first report to the citizens.

The rates of taxation among the townships vary from a low of 27.60 mills to a high of 29.50. We are speaking only of townships. There are other political subdivisions, such as Washington C. H., Bloomingburg, Jeffersonville, Octa and Milledgeville, for the benefit of which taxes are also voted and levied.

Of these various millages, you might be surprised to learn that only 3.85 mills go for countywide use. Some of this millage is voted by the people, over which the commissioners can exercise only routine jurisdiction. An example of this is the county mental health levy (retarded children) which now amounts to 35 hundredths (.35) mills.

Actually, the commissioners exercise discretionary jurisdiction over only 3 mills of your taxes. This millage is not voted but levied within the 10 mills mandated by law.

The townships share in the over all millage in varying amounts ranging from a low of 1.80 mills to a high of 3.70 mills.

By far the largest share of the overall millage goes to schools, amounting to 21.95 mills (18.40 operation, 1.70 bond retirement and 1.85 joint vocational).

Percentage-wise it breaks down as follows: County 13.7 per cent (the commissioners have discretionary jurisdiction over 10.7 per cent of this the rest is voted by the public), townships 8.2 per cent, and schools 78.1 per cent.

We hope this is somewhat informative. We expect to follow with other articles of similar nature dealing with other subjects.

The Fayette County Commissioners, Robert Mace Ray D. Warner J. Herbert Perrill

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 23, the 23rd day of 1973. There are 342 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1799, French troops captured the Italian city of Naples.

On this date:

In 1542, England's Henry VIII took the title King of Ireland.

In 1845, the U.S. Congress ruled that all national elections would take place on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November.

In 1920, the Dutch refused to surrender ex-Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany to the allies for punishment as a war criminal.

In 1943, in World War II, British troops entered the North African city of Tripoli.

In 1932, Franklin D. Roosevelt announced that he was a candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

In 1941, Charles A. Lindberg appeared before the House Foreign Affairs Committee and testified against the proposed lend-lease agreement to aid the Allies in World War II.

Ten years ago: The United States urged the European Common Market to admit Britain as a member.

Five years ago: North Korea seized the U.S. Navy ship "Pueblo," and held the 83 crewmen as spies.

One year ago: Egypt's government imposed new luxury taxes in a program to prepare for another war with Israel.

Today's birthdays: Former Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxembourg is 77. French Actress Jeanne Moreau is 45.

Impetus for health insurance

As the saying goes, first the good news: the average of hospital room rates throughout the country went up only 11.6 per cent during 1972, the lowest annual increase since 1967. The bad news is that the 11.6 rise, about double the pace of increase officially permitted under the wage-price freeze on health services, brought the average cost of a day's stay in a community hospital to a chilling $105.30.

This is almost twice as much as the comparable figure a mere six years ago. In the intervening period there has been intensive discussion of the problem of rising costs: there has been talk of consolidating hospital services to lessen duplications, and of various other steps that might be taken to make more effective use of health care personnel and facilities. With the average daily figure now past $100, and still rising, the urgency of reforms is more evident than ever.

Something else is evident, at least to all but those who hold out against anything that smacks of national health insurance. The nation is plainly confronted with a need for some form of such insurance which would spread out the cost over the entire population. The principle has been put to the test by the Social Security system over a period of almost 40 years, and has proved to be sound. The essential question is how best to apply this principle to health care. Congress should feel a strong obligation to resolve this question, and act accordingly, with as little delay as possible.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 24

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

Day may not seem to hold much opportunity at first, but if you look closely, you will find it has many advantages. Results will be largely up to YOU.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

You may find it easier to do things yourself instead of depending on others who do not wish to cooperate. Conquer yourself to conquer the world.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

Don't get caught in foolish maneuvers, time-consuming, pointless conversation. Listen and learn, and give good suggestions a try.

CANCER

Think twice before you voice that strong opinion. You may need a change of words, even thoughts, after a second reviewing. Avoid pessimism and contrariness.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Day calls for better-than-ordinary action and forethought. Returns can be fine (though not all immediate) with your steady, knowing cooperation.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

This is a day for aggressive action. Aim for your goals in a swift, sure manner. Details may not be crucially important but are still part of the pattern.

An auspicious day for business ventures. This is a period in which to give your finest performance, to capitalize on your gift of good management.

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Counting one's blessings makes every picture rosier, but DON'T count returns you have not and MAY NOT receive. Mixed influences; use care in all things.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Without much planetary assistance, you can still net top returns now but, before acting, plan well, be sure of facts and details, and DON'T procrastinate.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Important now: Common sense, Problem eliminated

SKEGNESS, England (AP) — Reginald Barnard and his wife, Hilda, solved the problem of holiday traffic jams by packing five suitcases into their car and driving 150 yards — to their favorite hotel for a week's vacation. "There's no pleasure driving on the roads these days," Barnard said. "This way we will not be tired after our drive home."

logical analysis, ease of action. Regular business and work matters highly favored. Don't waste time on regrets.

Profit by past mistakes and by sound advice. You have a wonderful chance for accomplishment but day needs the right push, steadiness.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Tangible gains indicated if you pursue work and handle obligations without unnecessary interruptions. Don't neglect the substantial for "flashy" but momentary gain.

Ohio cycle posse will stay together

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Matching up 36 sheriff's deputies, motorcycles and riding gear this weekend left Cuyahoga County Sheriff Ralph Kreiger exhausted, but it was worth it.

President Nixon, who invited Kreiger's volunteer motorcycle squad to lead his inaugural parade in Washington, D.C., Saturday, has promised to invite the squad to more parades during the next four years, Kreiger said.

He said Nixon told him to keep the team intact to ride as a presidential unit in parades such as the Rose Bowl or at New Orleans' Mardi Gras.

The motorcycle squad was invited to the inaugural parade after Nixon saw a smaller group of cyclists under Kreiger's direction perform during a campaign visit here last fall.

Kreiger said he recruited deputies from Lorain, Stark, Mahoning and Summit counties to fill out the squad to the 36 needed to form a giant "76" at the head of the inaugural parade.

He said the travel costs, uniforms and parts needed to match up the Harley Davidson motorcycles probably will run to about $250,000, but that most of it had already been covered by donations. In addition, each of the deputies sacrificed a week's pay. "The taxpayers have paid for nothing," said Kreiger.

The Amazon River's mouth is almost exactly 4,000 miles from its five headwater brooks.

The Craig's opened their Christmas gifts Sunday evening, around the silver Christmas tree, which was waiting. They also viewed pictures the Stoner's had taken on their trip.

Dinner was enjoyed later in the evening before their return home.

Hot Line to help Ohio consumers

By H.J. CZERNIEJEWSKI
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Don't feel let down when a tape recording answers Ohio's new environment hot-line next month.

A real, live woman will deal with all complaints.

"The recording just lets us receive more calls," said the real, live woman behind the tape, Mrs. Adelle Mitchell, newly appointed ombudsman for the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency.

"I hope it doesn't turn people off," Mrs. Mitchell, Columbus housewife, biologist and mother, really doesn't expect the toll-free hot-line to languish without business.

"It'll get a great deal of use," she said. "A citizen is concerned about a multitude of things — open burning, well pollution, air pollution, open dumping and burning at dump sites. Sometimes a citizen doesn't know where to take his complaint. Now he can call on the hot-line for help. That's my job."

Environmental questions often overlap divisions or departments and part of the new ombudsman's job is to steer complaints to the proper place. Perhaps a complaint will be against an industry already ordered to comply with anti-pollution standards. Mrs. Mitchell will so advise the complainant.

Whatever the problem, a member of the EPA said, Mrs. Mitchell is "a good listener, one who really knows her field." She has a master's degree in biology from the University of Vermont.

Mrs. Mitchell emphasized that she is available to industries as well as individuals. "Small industries are going to have problems in procedures for appeals," she said, but her major concern was to let Ohioans know she acts as a middleman between a citizen and the government.

"The assumption," she said, "is often that you are a spokesman for the agency. In a way, I'm supposed to be the citizen spokesman."

"The biggest problem is to maintain a position of separation from the agency. Government often tends to look at things as groups. I find it very frustrating when people don't look at others as individuals."

"If there is a large number of complaints in an area where there is no legislation, then I will present a recommendation for such legislation," said Mrs. Mitchell, who doesn't expect to turn into a lobbyist.

Noise pollution is one area where she might feel impelled to recommend legislation. "All I can do now is find out if the municipality they live in has an ordinance that applies," she said of noise complaints.

"It's going to be frustrating," said Mrs. Mitchell, contemplating the job ahead. "You're getting into an area of overlapping authority. Many decisions are made, there are many different viewpoints. I expect the first few months to be overwhelming. That's why an ombudsman should know the law well."

Mrs. Mitchell became well-acquainted with environment legislation when she was environmental coordinator for the Columbus League of Women Voters.

She said her husband, a biology professor at Ohio State University, and her three children are interested in her new position. "They understand what my job is all about," she said, adding "I hope" with a quick smile.

Mrs. Mitchell is visiting various government offices before the hotline is installed. "I have to find out exactly who is doing what in each division," she said.

Big cake too much for meeting

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — It was the pride and joy of Corbo's Dulceria when they rolled it out of the oven and trucked it over to the plush downtown restaurant-a 150-pound cream and strawberry cake that was dessert for 300 people.

Unfortunately, there were only 15 people at the Rubbermaid Co. salesmen's conference luncheon in the restaurant, and the cake seemed a little larger than the one they ordered.

"Somebody goofed," admitted Sal Corbo, owner of Corbo's Dulceria. He said a clerk got the Rubbermaid order confused with a weekend wedding.

"We thought it was a big company party," he said. The wedding order, he said, was "maybe for a second wedding."

The restaurant pushed several tables together to hold up the $200 cake while the matter was discussed. It was finally resolved to everyone's satisfaction.

Rubbermaid bought the big cake anyway but donated it to the Parmadale Children's Village. The 15 salesmen got a smaller substitute.

And the Corbo bakers went back to work on another 150-pound masterpiece for the Sunday wedding reception.

Crime grants approved for Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Grants totalling $198,776 have been approved for use in Ohio to help fight crime. The funds, made available under the federal Omnibus Crime Control Act, were awarded by Dr. David Sweet, Director of the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development.

Among the grants are two for Cuyahoga County, both for fighting narcotics and drug-related crime.

Other grants include:

- $30,000 for the Delaware police department to set up a community relations office and to train several members of the department.
- $20,000, for renovation of the heating and ventilation systems at the Lake County jail.
- A grant totaling $19,300 to provide police radio communications equipment for three Franklin County communities.
- $18,476 for renovation of the Wyandot County jail, and to provide a small juvenile detention area.

Say 'quality of debt' may be deteriorating

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — It is predictable as the phases of the year: When the economy is vigorous lenders are amiable. They might even plot little schemes to encourage you to borrow.

Most families don't need a great deal of encouragement to borrow when times are good and the future looks even better. It is then that they have the confidence to go into debt.

And while the debts build up, the rapidly expanding economy packs more income into the wallets of borrowers, who though pressed from time to time — that is, every month — are therefore able to pay the bills.

But then comes another predictable phase: Some borrowers and lenders begin to have a few financial scrapes. This is decidedly more frightening to the lender, and he begins to have doubts.

Shortly thereafter some lenders begin to raise questions about "the quality of debt." High quality debt is when bills are repaid on time. The ratio of delinquencies and failures reduces that quality.

The debt quality is lowered, for instance, when a businessman delays paying a bill within the allotted 30 days or whatever it may be, so that he can use his creditor's money interest-free.

This is one tipoff that a boom might be developing strains, that buyers and borrowers might be exceeding their capacity to pay. The reason the businessman can't pay his bills might be that his customers aren't paying theirs.

In the consumer area, the signs of deterioration show up as mortgage delinquencies and foreclosures, and slowness in repayment of installment loans at department stores and other retail outlets.

One of the first expressions of concern came at the annual convention this month of the National Association of Home Builders in Houston. "The quality of personal credit," said a banker, "may already have suffered some deterioration."

The latest data on mortgage delinquency, said Ira O. Scott, Jr., executive vice president of the Savings Bank Association of New York, "are not so serious as to indicate a crisis, but they do signal that credit quality is becoming more heavily strained."

Mortgage delinquency, he noted, rose to 3.82 per cent of the 4.5 million mortgages studied by the Mortgage Bankers Association, a figure he said was higher than at any other time in at least 10 years.

Scott maintains that early warnings seem to be flashing in the installment loan area. In a recession, he explained, it is typical for delinquencies of 30 days and over to rise sharply to around 2 per cent.

As economic conditions improve, he adds, the delinquency rate should drop

Urge recruitment of service industries

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The governor's Business and Employment Council has recommended that Ohio direct its recruiting efforts toward service industries with a faster rate of growth.

"Nearly all the new jobs" are being created in the service industries, Chairman George Dively said Monday, while the state has traditionally focused its recruitment efforts on manufacturing.

'Soybean update' session Thursday

With crop production techniques always changing, new varieties, new herbicides and new tillage practices, a "soybean update meeting" has been scheduled for Thursday in the Fayette County Extension Office meeting room, 319 S. Fayette St.

The program will begin at 10 a.m. with Dr. Gordon Ryder, Extension agronomist, explaining the results of soybean variety testing; Albert Baxter, Area Extension agronomist, talking about herbicides, and John Gruber, Fayette County agent, discussing the 1973 soybean and corn outlook.

At the afternoon session, beginning at 1 p.m., Dr. Ryder will talk about soybeans and diseases and about money-making tips, and Baxter will give a report on six years of soybean high yield demonstrations and a "new look" in Ohio State University soil testing.

The program, open to all soybean producers, will close at 3 p.m.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Three mid-season replacements in the current television year made their debuts over the weekend. One was merely good; the other two were great.

NBC's "Bobby Darin Show" is in the good category. It premiered Friday night with Darin in peak singing form.

It's fun to hear a singer who knows how to work with a big band. Too many vocalists fight them or get drowned out when the brass section kicks in.

Not Darin. He's in charge all the way. He's among the best of a vanishing breed — the skilled nightclub singer typified by such men as Tony Bennett and Joe Williams.

Darin's musical efforts were flawless and nicely complemented by the singing appearances of Burl Ives. Actress Dyan Cannon also took a turn at vocalizing and proved she is a good actress.

The over-all sheen of the show was dulled by flat comedy skits that just didn't come off.

Over at ABC, two great shows made their debut Saturday night. One was "Here We Go Again," the other "A Touch of Grace."

"Again" could be subtitled, "The Divorce That Came to Dinner." It's about a man and a woman, both divorced, who marry each other and settle down for another try at wedded bliss.

The problem is that the newlyweds, played by Larry Hagman and Diane Baker, live less than a mile from their respective former spouses, played by Dick Gautier and Nita Talbot.

This means they have the same friends, the same shopping centers and many miseries caused by running into their ex-spouses. It causes a certain amount of tension.

Ex-wife Judy, upon meeting her replacement, says, "And this must be Susan. You're much prettier than he described you."

Susan's sweet reply: "Thank you. You're much younger than he described you."

It's a funny show with good writing and acting from all concerned.

So is "Grace," despite an unlikely premise. It concerns an elderly widow (Shirley Booth) who is being wooed by an elderly gravedigger (J. Pat O'Malley).

"They say the older the bottle, the sweeter the wine," he tells her. To which she retorts: "Oh, they do, do they? Well, you better keep your cork in."

It's not a slam-bang "Maude" kind of show, but rather a quiet, carefully-sketched, warmly-written comedy about two lonely old people who manage to carry on with grace and humor.

It's worth seeing, if only to watch O'Malley stealing scenes like a genial burglar.

A booster rocket on the space shuttle will produce 18,000,000 horsepower, or the power generated by the engines on eight Boeing 747 airliners.

Canton Lehman zooms near cage poll lead

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Canton Lehman continues its spectacular rise in The Associated Press state high school basketball ratings and now is just one point away from the Class AAA lead.

The Polar Bears were ninth the first week of the ratings, No. 6 last week and No. 2 Monday with 179 points to 180 for Cleveland East Tech.

Coach Don Eddins' squad has put together a 25-game regular season winning streak.

However, Ohio's longest schoolboy victory string still belongs to Class A poll pacesetter Gnadenhutten Indian Valley South with 37 in a row.

Indian Valley South, the defending Class AA state tournament champion, collected 189 points to 166 for runnerup Marion Pleasant.

A statewide panel of sports writers and broadcaster also kept Waverly solidly entrenched in the Class AA lead. The Tigers, 10-0, picked up 190 points to 132 for Columbus Ready, the new runnerup in the middle division. Ready has a 10-2 record.

East Tech, 11-2, had been tied with Hamilton Taft for the Class AAA leadership last week. Taft, however, lost to Cincinnati Princeton and tumbled to the No. 5 spot.

Barberton, breezing along with a 13-0 record, leaped five positions into third place in Class AAA while Newark held the No. 4 rung.

Mansfield Senior, third last week, took a 77-63 loss from Lorain King and dropped to No. 6. Columbus South was seventh, Boardman eighth, Springfield South ninth and Middletown tenth.

Willard, 13-0, leaped from fifth to third in Class AA and was followed by Steubenville Catholic, Rossford, Poland, Huron, Gallipolis, Albany Alexander and new face Tipp City, in order.

Fort Recovery, 14-0, remained the third-place power in Class A and then came Wapakoneta St. Joseph, Sebring, McDonald, Zanesville Rosecrans, Fostoria St. Wendelin, Strasburg and Greenwich South Central, new to the top ten.

Hadl, Tilleman and Unitas on pro football move list

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The pro football travel business picked up Monday with Johnny Unitas bound for San Diego, Mike Tilleman heading for Atlanta and John Hadl apparently waitlisted on a flight to somewhere in National Football League country.

Unitas, Baltimore's 17-year super quarterback but victim of a youth movement last season, was sent packing from the Colts to the San Diego Chargers for what Baltimore General Manager Joe Thomas called "future considerations." He declined to elaborate.

Then, the Houston Oilers sent disgruntled defensive tackle Mike

Burkholder remains in charge of Bucks

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Bob Burkholder, top assistant to Ohio State University basketball coach Fred Taylor, will handle the reins for the Buckeyes Saturday at Purdue while Taylor remains hospitalized.

A spokesman at Riverside Hospital said Monday the 48-year-old Taylor's condition was improving and that he has been removed from a coronary care unit.

Tilleman to Atlanta for the Falcons' first choice in next week's NFL draft.

Unitas, who has completed more passes for more yardage and more touchdowns than any other passer in NFL history but is closing in on his 40th birthday, had insisted since he was benched in favor of youthful Marty Domres after five 1972 games that he would not return to the Colts. Still, he wasn't ecstatic about a trip to San Diego.

"Just because I've been traded doesn't mean I'll be going to the West Coast," he said. "For one thing, I don't know if it's legal. I'll just have to sit down and look at things and then talk with the San Diego people."

The reference about the legality of the deal apparently concerned a 10-year $30,000-a-year personal services contract with the Colts, which is to begin when Unitas quits playing.

Spitz voted top athlete

NEW YORK (AP) — Mark Spitz buried his image as an Olympic choker under a wave of gold medals at the Munich Games and today was a landslide winner as 1972 Associated Press Male Athlete of the Year.

The mustachioed Californian polled 405 votes from a national panel of sports newsmen. Golfer Jack Nicklaus was runnerup with 62 and baseball pitcher Steve Carlton received 61.

Clay Carroll named outstanding hurler

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Cincinnati Reds relief ace Clay Carroll has been selected as the team's outstanding 1972 pitcher by the Cincinnati Chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Carroll, named to the All-Star team for the second straight year in 1972, posted a major league record 37 saves in his top major league season. He had a 6-4 record and 2.25 earned run average.

Spitz, a flop at the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City, churned to an unprecedented seven golds. He established a world record on every journey to the winner's platform.

His was the happy, heroic side of Munich. Spitz' final victory came eight hours before tragedy struck on that infamous Black Tuesday of murder and terror.

George Foreman wins crown in ring upset

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — The boxing world woke up today with a new heavyweight champion, a 24-year-old former delinquent whose mild manners and tender heart belie a pair of the most devastating fists the game has seen.

George Foreman sent Joe Frazier spinning to the ice blue canvas six times Monday night and stopped the fierce, hardpunching defending champ in 1:35 of the second round in a staggering upset.

Foreman appeared almost on the verge of tears moments afterward when newsmen swooped down on him in his tight little dressing room in the catacombs of Kingston's National Stadium.

"I didn't want to hurt him any more," he said. "I kept begging Yancey Durham (Frazier's trainer and manager) to stop it."

The swiftness of the turnover of boxing's most prized crown was almost unbelievable.

Frazier, a brawling ex-slaughterhouse butcher, had flailed his way through 29 opponents as a pro,

Maryland stages 105-76 win over Wake Forest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

They struck up "Hail To The Chief" as usual when Lefty Driesell strolled into the arena, but the Maryland basketball coach got some sour notes along with it.

"Losing never does anybody any good," said Driesell, referring to boos he heard Monday night.

Driesell, who hasn't been too popular at College Park lately because of a recent crucial loss to Atlantic Coast Conference colleague North Carolina State, regained some of the popularity after Monday night's 105-76 victory over Wake Forest.

"We've been tight and scared in the last two games since losing to State," said Driesell, referring to a two-point loss at home to the Wolfpack two weeks ago that ended Maryland's unbeaten season.

Maryland, ranked No. 2 at the time, dropped to No. 3 in favor of the North Carolina State. This week, the Terps are placed No. 4 in the Associated

Panthers host McClain, visit Franklin Heights

Miami Trace's Panthers did themselves a king-sized favor by scratching back into the tight South Central Ohio League basketball race last Friday night by scoring a convincing 74-47 win over a revived Hillsboro team.

But there's no napping in sight for head coach Jan Stauffer's third edition as a vigorous doubleheader looms on Miami Trace's docket this weekend.

The Panthers will plunge back into the SCOL fireworks Friday night when they entertain the remarkably aggressive Greenfield Tigers before embarking on a non-league road trip to Franklin Heights Saturday night.

MIAMI TRACE, which holds a balanced 3-3 SCOL record and 6-6 all-games chart, will be looking for their 21st win over Greenfield in the series between the two teams which dates back to the Panthers' basketball baptism in the 1961-62 season.

The Panthers own a lopsided 20-3 lead in the series with Greenfield. Prior to the 1969-70 season the Tigers had never experienced a victory over a Miami Trace cage team.

A win over Greenfield would keep Miami Trace only two games off the pace being set in the 45th SCOL title bout by Circleville and Washington C. H., depending on the outcome of the two other league shooting matches Friday.

Miami Trace snapped a frustrating three-game nosedive with its solid

Spaghetti supper plans to be set

The Washington C. H. Blue Lion basketball boosters will hold their regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the WSHS cafeteria, according to Dick Witherspoon, president of the backing organization.

Witherspoon noted that final plans for the booster club's annual spaghetti supper will be discussed. The spaghetti supper will be held starting at 4:30 p.m. Friday prior to Washington C. H.'s game with Wilmington.

sacking of Hillsboro and will be hoping for its second win of the season over Greenfield when head coach Sam Snyder's high-scoring Tigers invade for the 8 p.m. contest.

Greenfield, which improved its all-games record to a 4-8 level with a non-league win over Jackson Saturday night, is winless inside the SCOL chase, but is blessed with squirmey, whirlwind guard Buddy Kennedy, the SCOL's top point producer.

The 5-foot-8 Kennedy is atop the loop's scoring race with neat 20.8 credentials on the basis of 250 points in 12 Greenfield outings. The senior peppercot also is second on the SCOL games list with even 20.0 marksmanship for the Tigers who have swished the nets with an average of 71.6 points a game, but who have given up over 75 markers in their 12 contests.

TWO OTHER players appear on Greenfield's scoresheet with double figure averages. Larry Crabtree, an aggressive 5-foot-11 senior, and slender senior George Hamilton boast 15.1 and 10.1 averages, respectively.

Bob Trego, a husky 5-11 senior, is Greenfield's pivotman, while spunky 5-7 senior Danny Raikie will join Kennedy in the McClain backcourt. Mike Anderson, a 6-0 senior, Dan Strain, a 5-9 junior, and Curtis Carmen, a 6-1 senior, are Greenfield's top spares.

The Panthers will be trying to improve a 3-3 record against outside competition when they visit Franklin Heights Saturday.

The tiny Falcons, who had only three lettermen from last year's team, are suffering a miserable season with a 2-11 all-games record. Both wins have come inside the Columbus Metro League where they stand 2-6.

Larry Ferst, a 5-foot-11 sophomore guard, has been the top pointmaker for fourth-year head coach Bob Cawley's Franklin Heights bunch. Dwain Haag, a 6-0 senior, Mark Belcastro, a 5-11 senior, and Doug Davis, a 6-0 senior, are Cawley's veterans, while Mike Blount, a 5-11 junior, has shouldered a bulk of the scoring burden for the Falcons.

West seeks 3rd All-Star cage win

CHICAGO (AP) — With Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Rick Barry missing, the West will be hard pressed tonight to score a third straight victory over the East in the National Basketball Association's 23rd All-Star game.

Chicago will host the classic for the first time and a capacity crowd of 20,000 is expected for the nationally televised contest, ABC, 9 p.m., EST.

Jabbar, the former Lew Alcindor and super star of the Milwaukee Bucks, announced his withdrawal Monday night for "personal reasons."

Barry, the high-scoring ace of the Golden State Warriors, suffered an ankle injury in Milwaukee Sunday and had to withdraw. Jabbar will be replaced by Bob Love of the Chicago Bulls and Barry's replacement will be Connie Hawkins of the Phoenix Suns.

It was not known to what extent Jabbar's withdrawal had to do with an incident over the weekend when seven members of a Muslim sect to which Jabbar belonged were killed in Washington, D.C. Jabbar once owned the residence where the killings took place but had donated it to the Muslim group.

Without Jabbar, West Coach Bill Sharman of the Los Angeles Lakers will have only two pivotmen—Wilt Chamberlain of the Lakers and Nate Thurmond of Golden State.

New arena wanted for Cincinnati hockey

Vietnam shadow cast pall over Johnson presidency

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the beginning of Lyndon B. Johnson's presidency, Vietnam was a shadow on his horizon. At the end, it cast a pall ranging far across his administration. "The strain of prolonged engagement in a distant war stirred deep controversy among our people," Johnson said later. "The war created or deepened divisions—between the President and Congress, between 'doves' and 'hawks,' between generations..." So it was in a Vietnam speech, March 31, 1968, announcing a scaleback of the U.S. air assault on North Vietnam in a move to promote peace negotiations, that Johnson dropped his ultimate political bombshell: "I shall not seek, and I will not accept, the nomination of my party for another term as your president." Johnson's deep disappointment shows in his memoirs, "The Vantage Point." He wrote: "I regretted more than anyone could possibly know that I was leaving the White House without having achieved a just, an honorable, and a lasting peace in Vietnam." At the start, when Johnson stepped into office in November 1963 following John F. Kennedy's assassination, Vietnam admittedly was a difficulty. Kennedy had sent 16,000 U.S. troops there, largely under the label of advisers and technicians, Johnson was to swell the force to some 540,000. In his first hours in the White House Johnson was briefed on foreign affairs. While South Vietnam "gave me real cause for concern," he recalled, "compared with later periods, even the situation in Vietnam at that point appeared to be relatively free from the pressure of immediate decisions." In the presidential election the following year Johnson rated himself as a Vietnam "peace" candidate as against his more militantly anti-Communist Republican opponent, Barry Goldwater. Johnson won the election in a landslide. Yet various plans already were under way within the administration, as the secret Pentagon papers later showed, for more forceful action in the Indochina conflict.

Johnson rights commitment tardy, but deep-seated

By KENNETH J. FREED Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — "We Shall Overcome." The words of the civil-rights anthem rolled out across the nation in the distinct tones of the South. Lyndon Johnson of Texas was telling America to live up to its promise of equality. The commitment to civil rights for blacks came late to Johnson—he had once voted against anti-lynching law. But, when it came, it came with all the strength, cleverness and stubbornness that was in him, and there was plenty of all three. And it stayed. When he stood before Congress and in front of television cameras in 1965 to say "we shall overcome," he was not spouting rhetoric convenient for a Democratic party leader.

In one of his last public acts, former President Lyndon Johnson stood on the steps of the library he had built as a monument to himself in Austin, Tex., to say America still owed its blacks what they deserved as a birthright—equality.

"To be black is not to stand on level ground," he said last Dec. 12, nearly four years past the time he needed to be concerned about acceptance. But he was concerned; enough to

WCH youth to study in Rome, Italy

Jonathan C. Sauer, son of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Sauer, 504 E. Market St., will be among 41 college students studying in Italy this spring on the Rome Campus of Trinity College, Hartford, Conn. The spring semester program begins with the students' departure Wednesday from Kennedy Airport in New York.

The Trinity College Rome Campus is situated on one of the original seven hills of Rome, overlooking the Tiber on one side and Circus Maximus on the other. Many opportunities for enjoyment of Roman life, the cafes, little shops, picturesque flea market, the Colosseum, Forum and Palatine Hill all are within walking distance.

Students are housed in dormitory-style quarters of a renovated convent. The program is under the direction of Dr. Michael R. Campo, chairman of the Department of Modern Languages and Literatures at Trinity, and in past years arrangements have been made for various cultural and recreational activities for the students, such as spending a weekend harvesting grapes in a nearby vineyard or meeting with Italian students at the University of Rome.

This is the third year the Rome Campus has been in operation and this year's program will end May 13.

In India, even men from neighboring villages may not understand one another. Indians speak more than 800 languages and dialects.

COMPLETES MANAGEMENT COURSE — Sam Kimpel, right, assistant plant superintendent of the Landmark Feed Plant, is congratulated by Kenneth Probasco, Landmark executive vice president, upon successfully completing the year-long management school conducted by the regional cooperative in Columbus. Heavy air strikes flown despite rumors of peace

SAIGON (AP) — Despite reports of an impending ceasefire, U.S. bombers hammered North Vietnamese positions across South Vietnam with the heaviest strikes in five months today and Monday.

Military sources said it was part of a combined allied effort to minimize an expected Communist land grab.

U.S. fighter-bombers carried out 374 strikes and the big B52s added another 80 during the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. today, U.S. officials said. It was the largest number of strikes since Aug. 22, when 375 were reported.

South Vietnamese military sources said captured Communist documents and reconnaissance indicated that enemy troops and supplies are moving from the Cambodian border southward along the Saigon River corridor toward Saigon.

The main staging area was said to be the Michelin rubber plantation, 40 miles northwest of the capital, where South Vietnamese forces suffered nearly 400 casualties in the past week.

Fighting was reported to have tapered off in the area, but field officers were anticipating renewed attacks.

Other North Vietnamese forces were said to be moving from the Cambodian and Laotian borders toward the major cities of Pleiku and Kontum in the central highlands.

More than half of the U.S. fighter-bomber strikes were in the northern quarter of South Vietnam, where Hanoi's troops are trying to hold on to a 10-mile strip of land below the demilitarized zone which they seized during the Communist offensive last summer.

Scattered fighting was reported across South Vietnam from the DMZ to the Mekong Delta. The Saigon command said the enemy launched 52 attacks during the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today. Field reports said an enemy company tried to infiltrate a hamlet 20 miles northwest of Saigon but withdrew after a 30-minute fight with the local militia.

Rhodes real estate license object of investigation

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— State officials have promised to investigate reports that former Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes and several Rhodes associates received real estate broker's licenses under unusual circumstances in the waning months of the Rhodes administration.

Rhodes denied any impropriety in the matter, noting, "My conduct has always been honorable...My actions, publicly or privately, are an open record and an open book."

Current State Commerce Department Director W. Dennis Shaul promised to investigate the reports, however, calling the situation "astonishing." The Ohio Real Estate Commission, which issues the licenses, is a part of the commerce department.

Rhodes' license was issued on Jan. 7, 1971, four days before he left office and only three days after he applied for the license, although state law calls for a 30-day waiting period.

Similar licenses were issued between Jan. 7-12 to former Commerce Department Director J. Gordon Peltier, former Development Department Director F.P. Neuen-schwander, then-gubernatorial aide Roy Martin and former Motor Vehicles Registrar Fred Rice.

Although no test score sheet is in Rhodes file, the former governor said that he was administered a special oral examination in the governor's office before the license was issued.

He said three commission members were present for the examination, although only one, former Commission President John H. Pace, said he remembered the special test.

Paul J. Everson of Cleveland, still a member, said he wasn't present for any test, and former Commissioner

P.G. Graves of Cincinnati said he couldn't remember being there. The commission's executive secretary, Vernon B. McMillen, also denied he was present at any such test.

Normally, the test is administered to scores of applicants at the same time, and McMillen said he knew of no case where an oral examination had been substituted for a written one.

But McMillen said that Neuen-schwander, Martin and Rice did take "special examinations" administered privately at the commission headquarters, while Peltier said he took the examination in his office by himself.

Rhodes, who has headed the industrial development firm of James A. Rhodes and Associates in Columbus since leaving office, said that he had not done any real estate brokerage business in the state since receiving the license.

Mansfield girl named Junior Miss

MT. VERNON, Ohio (AP)— May's a long way off, but Kathy Lynn Bosko, a 17-year-old student at Madison High School in Mansfield, has started preparing for a trip to Mobile, Ala., and the finals of the National Junior Miss competition.

She won the Ohio Junior Miss title here over the weekend in competition with 19 other girls.

She also won in the poise and appearance division in preliminary judging.

The state title won for her $1,500 in scholarships, clothes and other prizes, as well as the trip to Mobile for the National Junior Miss Pageant.

First runner up was Thilathy Kavouras, 17, of Middletown, who also took honors in the talent division during the first of two nights of preliminary judging.

Second runnerup was Susan Swies, 17, of Gahanna, Junior Miss of Columbus. She won a preliminary award in the youth fitness section.

Diane Smith, 17, of Cincinnati, took the poise and appearance division in one evening of judging and was third runnerup.

A double award winner was Karen Sue Weber of Piqua, the Miami County Junior Miss. She gained preliminary tops during one round in both youth fitness and scholarstic achievement.

A talent award winner during one of the two rounds was Cheryl Rutledge of Dayton.

Marti Driessnack of Dayton took the contest's friendship title.

They'll Do It Every Time

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

It Is Not a Venereal Disease

Is "trench mouth" a venereal disease?

Mrs. H. J., R.I.

Dear Mrs. J.: Vincent's disease, or "trench mouth," is definitely not a venereal disease. It is not related to syphilis or gonorrhea, the two venereal diseases that now are reaching epidemic proportions.

Trench mouth is a disagreeable, painful infection of the margin of the gums. It may also involve the mucous lining of the throat, and even the tonsils.

A variety of germs may be responsible for this condition, which is so often associated with poor hygiene, nutritional disturbances and debilitating diseases.

Although trench mouth is no longer considered contagious, it still is wise to avoid contact with those who are suffering from this condition.

Occasionally, lowered resistance following severe illness or emotional distress may lower body resistance and allow the fusiform bacteria to invade the tissues of the mouth.

Smoking has been indicted as a possible added reason why Vincent's infection persists.

The disease, especially in the acute phase, responds quickly to antibiotics after the correction of the local problems in the gums by the dentist.

A big storm is brewing in our house. Our twin daughters want to become nurses. They are now in the third year of college.

My husband is adamant because he insists that nursing is a difficult and menial occupation. How can I convince him that the girl should be allowed to make their own choice?

Mrs. A. T. T., Iowa

Dear Mrs. T.: The profession of nursing is a venerable and highly dignified one. Nurses play a vital role in the total structure of the health team. They are trained to become invaluable forces in the patient's eventual recovery from illness.

Their psychological insight and sensitive awareness of one's emotional needs support their patients during the turbulence of a hospital experience.

As a physician who is in daily contact with nurses, I find that their contribution to the destiny of my patients is enormous. It is true that some of the obligations of the nurse may be considered "menial," but this is a trivial part of the total structure of nursing. The physician, too, has tasks that are not glamorous, but none of these detract from the gratification implicit in caring for and curing the sick.

A visit to any one of the fine hospitals in your city and a frank discussion with the Supervisor of Nursing will give your husband real insight into the vast horizon of nursing.

The profession of nursing is filled with opportunities for advancement and economic security, but more especially with the satisfaction of contributing to the health and happiness of other human beings.

Opening lead - two of diamonds.

A shrewd defender makes all kinds of assumptions about the location of the unseen cards. He does not see partner's or declarer's hand, but, in order to locate the best method of defense, he tentatively assumes where some of the missing cards reside.

The governing principle in making such assumptions is that you don't assign to declarer cards that make the contract impregnable, if it is at all possible for partner to have them. On the contrary, you always assume that partner has the high-card strength or distribution that will lead to declarer's defeat.

Consider this case where West leads a diamond. East takes the ace and the problem is what to return.

The proper return is a low heart, but, before discussing the question of why, let's first examine the effect. West puts up the king and dummy wins with the ace.

It doesn't much matter what declarer does next; he is bound to go down one. If he tries a trump finesse, West takes the king, returns a heart, and that finishes declarer off. If East returns anything but a low heart at trick two, South easily makes the contract.

East's goal at the start is to score four tricks for the defense. In attempting to meet this goal, he cannot afford to credit South with the king of hearts, for, if declarer has that card, it becomes impossible for East-West to take four tricks.

Hence a heart return by East at trick two is a must. He cannot do better than hope that West has a trump trick in

Contemporary critics declare that McGUFFEY'S READERS are "too hard" for today's children. Get that, "too hard"! 'Twould appear that what these experts are saying is that today's "look-say" method of "education" has made our children so intellectually soft that they find the standard reader of the one room schoolhouse too hard. In these readers the English is precise, supple, rhythmic; it communicates and it delights. There is discipline about the alphabet, about phonetics, vowels and consonants, the sounds of vowels and symbols for the sounds, about dipthongs, about articulation and enunciation, about punctuation and emphasis. In the words of poet E. Merrill Root, "The McGUFFEY'S READERS do children the honor and grace of regarding them as responsible minds and responsive souls."

From the Primer to the Sixth Reader these books have been to offer yet today. Many of the best private schools still use them as a basic text. Here at our shop we sell many of these readers. Some people buy the set, and some buy them one at a time. Of the private schools using McGUFFEY'S READERS today, many are near our large universities and educate the children or their faculties. Seems strange, doesn't it, that these people want their own children to have the advantage of these great books, but they would be the first to say NO to their use in the public schools. Yes, I know, "too hard" for the masses. Know what I think? I don't think the kids of the masses are as stupid as these intellectuals in their ivory towers think they are. Maybe we could get someone to write a modern counterpart, bring McGuffey up to date, but retain the quality and beauty of the original. How about that?

Yes, we try to keep all of the McGUFFEY READERS in stock at all times. If you want to bridge the generation gap sometime come in and get one and find out what it was that made your dad, or your granddad tick. I'm sure you will respect them more, and you may learn more than you think.

DIVORCE ASKED

Martha E. Robinson, Staunton-Sugar Grove Rd. has filed suit for divorce in Common Pleas Court from Jack R. Robinson, 624 Columbus Ave., on grounds of neglect of duty. The parties were married Nov. 24, 1972 at Newport, Ky., and have no children, according to the petition. The plaintiff asks a divorce judgment, that she be granted all household goods, free from any claim of the defendant, temporary and permanent alimony, attorney's fees and that she be restored to her former name of Martha E. Lindsay.

CASE DISMISSED

The divorce action brought by Robert Lee Yarger, 752 High St., against Lora Jean Yarger, 527 E. Paint St., has been dismissed on motion by the plaintiff and the defendant's oral motion to withdraw her answer and dismiss a cross complaint.

JUDGEMENT ASKED

Paul Glaze, Rt. 1, New Holland, has filed suit in Common Pleas Court against the Home Insurance Co., Columbus, seeking a judgment of $5,800.

The petition states that the plaintiff purchased a fire and casualty insurance policy from the defendant Feb. 3, 1971, insuring the plaintiff's farm buildings, equipment and farm machinery. One of the items insured was a 1967 Oliver self-propelled combine.

On Nov. 6, 1972 while the combine was being operated to harvest soybeans, the machine caught fire and was destroyed.

The plaintiff alleges he immediately notified the defendant of the claim that the defendant breached the insurance contract and has failed to adjust for the damages.

Arrests

POLICE

MONDAY — Densil F. Murphy, 50, Cannon, Ky., disturbing the peace by intoxication.

Man hitches ride . . . in wrong car!

A 50-year-old Kentucky man "hitched" a ride with a city police cruiser Monday night and received a free trip to the local lockup.

Capt. Charles Foster said he had been dispatched to S. Fayette Street to investigate a complaint of a drunk when a man stepped out into the street off the S. Fayette Street bridge with his thumb out, and attempted to hitch a ride. Capt. Foster obligingly stopped and asked the man to get in the car, but instead of taking him to his destination he was taken to police headquarters and charged with disturbing the peace by intoxication.

Foster said a passing motorist had reported the man, Densil F. Murphy, of Cannon, Ky., walking in the street a few minutes earlier.

Police also investigated a shoplifting incident at the P & Q Shoe store, Washington Square, Monday evening. Louise Williams, a clerk, told officers that a man and two women had entered the store just before closing and one of the trio had taken a pair of men's shoes valued at $10.87.

Joseph L. Burnett, 27, of 706 High St., was ordered held for grand jury investigation following a preliminary hearing before Acting Judge John Bryan.

Burnett, charged with the Jan. 12 rape of a 30-year-old South Solon woman, had entered a plea of not guilty to the charge. Burnett was arrested by sheriff's deputies Jan. 13. Judge Bryan ordered Burnett's 25,000 bond continued.

Jose Luis Nunez, and his wife, Amalia Martinez Nunez, both 18, of Miami, Fla., waived their rights to an extradition hearing before Judge Reed M. Winegardner Monday afternoon.

The couple, arrested in Bloomingburg Friday after sheriff's deputies noticed them driving a stolen car, are wanted in Florida, Georgia, and Richland County, on grand larceny and auto theft charges. Nunez is also wanted in Dade County, Fla., for escaping from the jail there in October.

The couple was driving a car stolen in Georgia at the time of their arrest. Officers also found a television set stolen from a motel near Mansfield and several burglar tools in the car.

Sheriff's deputies said the couple would be released to Florida authorities.

THE MEN involved in a barroom brawl at the Emerald Inn, S. Fayette St., Saturday night all failed to appear on fighting charges and forfeited bonds.

The charges had been filed against Richard L. Brannon, 28, Old Springfield Rd., Arnold E. Lewis, 24, of 1024 E. Paint St., and Homer Smith, 46, of 917 John St., by city police after the fight was broken up. Brannon suffered a large gash on the back of his head when he was hit over the head with a chair during the brawl and required treatment at Memorial Hospital.

Bond on the charge was $50. Gary L. Freeman, 26, of Wheelersburg, forfeited $50 bond on an intoxication charge filed by city police. He was arrested at the Sohio Station, Dayton and Oakland avenues, Saturday.

An assault charge lodged against Donald R. Beers, 25, of 732 E. Market St., was dismissed at the request of the complaining witness, Deborah Beers, his wife. She was assessed court costs.

Sewage plant improvements meeting topic

City councilmen may well have their fingers crossed!

City Manager Dan Wolford and Charles Bird, of the firm of Bird and Bull, Worthington, engineering consultants, will meet with representatives of the Ohio attorney general's office in Columbus at 10 a.m. Friday for a discussion and preliminary hearing on orders for improvements at the Washington C. H. waste treatment plant issued by the Ohio Department of Health.

The list of required improvements is extensive — and expensive, although no cost estimate has yet been made.

The modernization program is to be completed in a number of phases, and city officials will request as lenient a timetable as possible.

TOPS chapter holds meeting

Mrs. Carolyn Mossbarger was welcomed as a new member of the OH TOPS chapter 669 at Monday's meeting in Eastside School. Mrs. Henry Paul was named "best loser of the week."

Gainers for last week read original poems. The discussion topic was the individual need of dieting, in which all present participated.

Mrs. Allen McClung read a poem in honor of Mrs. Alice Jackson, chapter queen of the year, to be recognized at International Recognition Day in Milwaukee, Wis. There were 30 present.

Long agenda awaiting City Council

Fifteen ordinances, three resolutions, a public hearing on a rezoning matter and a joint meeting with the Union Township Board of Trustees for reorganization of the Washington Cemetery board are on the agenda for City Council's regular session Wednesday night.

It is the longest agenda in the memory of present city officials.

The joint meeting with Union Township officials will precede the regular order of business and will include the annual cemetery report and the selection of a new cemetery board. Present members are Jack Cubbage, representing the township trustees; Joe O'Brien, representing Council, and Sam Parrett, member at large.

Heading the list of ordinances, all but one of them carrying emergency tags, are legislative measures adopting an integrated table of rates and salary ranges for city employees and assignment of classifications and pay ranges. Pay scales vary, but the average overall increase is approximately 5.9 per cent. The last increase a year ago was less than 3 per cent.

RELATED ordinances would establish and overtime policy and authorize overtime payments and fix compensation for the city auditor, the Municipal Court clerk, the deputy court clerk, the city waste treatment plant superintendent and the city manager.

Other ordinances designate James A. Kiger to continue as city solicitor; authorize the city manager to employ Glenn Tatman as city inspector (building, electrical, zoning, etc.); authorize payment to Kirk's Furniture for installation of carpeting at the new city offices; authorize payment of 1973 landfill dumping fees to the Fayette County Board of Commissioners; authorize the city manager to contract with the Hartley Oil Co. and the Union Oil Co. for furnishing gasoline to the city.

COUNCIL, which already has authorized the vacation of a portion of an alley adjoining the Marting Manufacturing Co., will act on a replacement ordinance correcting a description of the alley which previously had been designated as a part of the "Company's Addition". The correct name is Washington Improvement Co. Addition.

Also on the agenda are resolutions of appreciation to the Sertoma Club and Paul Winterbotham for work on Christmas Park and a resolution endorsing the establishment of a technical college on the Laurel Oaks Career Development Center campus.

A public hearing will be held on an application filed by Heber Deer asking that lots 62 and 63, Elmwood Addition, at the corner of Leesburg and McKinley avenues be rezoned from R-2 (two family) to R-3 (multifamily).

Council also will consider an application for a D-5 liquor permit filed by Kathryn E. Hall, doing business as Bert's Bar, 703 Delaware St.

Coal production decline noted

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — The bottom is dropping out of Logan County's coal mines, once the biggest producers in a state that used to be the nation's top coal supplier, and Logan miners are joining the ranks of the unemployed.

Production in the rest of the state rose slightly from 1971 to 1972, but the Logan coal fields produced only 8.3 million tons last year, the lowest since 1915, according to the Logan Coal Operators' Association.

A half-dozen mines were shut down during 1972 and some 900 miners were laid off just in the last two months of the year, the association says.

The newly elected board convened immediately following the shareholder's meeting and named the following officers:

Viet peace meet ends; sides mum

PARIS (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger conferred with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho for 3 hours and 45 minutes today and then flew back to Washington, ending a negotiating session that the White House said was to complete a Vietnam peace agreement.

Kissinger and Tho emerged from their secret meeting and posed shaking hands in front of the International Conference Center on Avenue Kleber in sight of the Arc de Triomphe.

But they gave no indication whether the cease-fire agreement was now complete or whether further decisions were required from President Nixon or

President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam.

It was noted, however, that official U.S. and North Vietnamese photographers were admitted to part of the session.

It was Kissinger's and Tho's first meeting there, their previous negotiations having been held in suburban villas with each acting as host alternately. Some observers concluded that the move was another indication that agreement was near.

There was no official word on whether a date has been set for signature of the agreement. Outgoing

Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird hinted to newsmen in Washington Monday night that the text may be initiated Wednesday.

Kissinger returned to Paris Monday night and went into immediate conference with Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam of South Vietnam. They met again today before Kissinger's session with Tho.

Both Lam and the Viet Cong's foreign minister, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, were excluded from the secret talks between Kissinger and Tho.

Reports from Saigon said President Nguyen Van Thieu has approved the agreement in principle but may still have to be consulted on the final wording.

BULLETIN

President Nixon will address the nation by television and radio at 10 p.m. EST tonight—presumably to announce the initialing of the Vietnam peace agreement.

Highlights of Johnson presidency

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some of the highlights of the presidency of Lyndon B. Johnson, who died Monday at 64:

1963

Nov. 22: Lyndon Baines Johnson becomes the 36th President of the United States upon the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas, Tex. A little more than two hours after Kennedy was shot, Johnson takes the oath of office, administered by federal Judge Sarah Hughes in the cabin of the presidential jet plane, Air Force One, at Love Field, Dallas.

1964

May 22: In an address to University of Michigan graduates at Ann Arbor, Mich., the President proposes for the first time the building of a "Great Society" in which cities would be revitalized, natural resources protected and educational opportunities assured all children.

July 2: Johnson signs the Civil Rights Act, the most sweeping civil rights legislation since Reconstruction. After months of parliamentary maneuvering and often acrimonious debate, a bipartisan majority in both houses of Congress passed a more far-reaching civil rights bill than President Kennedy had recommended in June 1963.

Aug. 5: The President asks Congress to pass a joint resolution assuring him of full support "for all necessary action" he might have to take to protect U. S. armed forces in Southeast Asia. The request followed two attacks within three days on U.S. destroyers by North Vietnamese PT boats in the Gulf of Tonkin.

Nov. 3: Johnson wins election to his own 4-year term, scoring one of the most overwhelming political victories in the history of the presidency. He gets 61 per cent of the vote and carries 44 states and the District of Columbia against six states for Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, the G.O.P. nominee.

April 7: In a speech at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Md., the President offers to take part in "unconditional discussions" about Vietnam with the governments concerned. He also offers to let North Vietnam participate in a vast, billion-dollar economic development plan for Indochina.

April 28: Johnson orders U.S. troops, into the Dominican Republic, to protect U.S. lives and property, in the largest U.S. intervention in the Western Hemisphere.

July 30: Johnson signs the Medicare bill at the Harry S. Truman Library in Independence, Mo. The new law is intended to help 19 million Americans pay their bills for health services.

Aug. 5: The President signs the Voting Rights Act of 1965, 104 years to the day Abraham Lincoln had signed a bill freeing slaves who had been pressed into Confederate service.

Fuel shortage puts Ohio 'on the edge of crisis'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "We're on the edge of a crisis, if we're not already into one," declared H. W. Chaddock, a spokesman for Columbia Gas of Ohio, alluding to the current fuel shortage.

With such complaints common among other gas companies (all but one gas company in Ohio have asked gas restrictions on new residential areas), the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio (PUCO) began to outline Monday what steps it would take in the event of a statewide fuel crisis.

Henry Eckart, PUCO's chairman, said planning is necessary because all fuel problems are interrelated.

He said he authorized PUCO Chief Engineer John Borrows, to "draw up a plan."

Borrows said he would first contact suppliers of coal and petroleum to get appraisals of their supply situations.

"Dealing with the problem on an individual basis may just displace it from one place to another," he explained.

At this time, propane is in shortest supply of all fuels, according to Shirley Kappa, PUCO information officer.

The PUCO began coordinating propane supplies six weeks ago to aid farmers who needed it to dry crops they had been unable to harvest earlier due to muddy fields.

Miss Kappa did not know when results of the fuel crisis review would be available, because the PUCO is having difficulties contacting certain fuel companies.

Currently, there are adequate supplies of natural gas, Ohio's main listed the official cause of death as coronary thrombosis.

Hiegar's autopsy showed that the former president had severe coronary artery disease, with complete occlusion — closure — of two of three major arteries to the heart. A third artery was about 60 per cent occluded.

The former President had a history of heart trouble dating to 1955. He suffered what was termed as a major heart attack in April 1972 and was hospitalized with chest pains last July.

With him at death were three Secret Service agents, Dr. David J. Abbott of Johnson City, the plane's pilot and the wife of the foreman of the sprawling LBJ ranch, to which he retired after leaving the White House.

As Johnson was flown to San Antonio, his wife, Lady Bird, was contacted by radio telephone in a car about a block from the LBJ Library, about 80 miles from the family ranch. She immediately went by helicopter to San Antonio, arriving at Brooke hospital before her husband's body. A family spokesman said Mrs. Johnson had prepared breakfast for the former president before going to Austin on business. The spokesman quoted her as saying, "His health seemed no different than it had been recently. He seemed a bit quieter but was in good spirits."

After spending more than an hour in San Antonio, Mrs. Johnson returned to Austin and joined her daughter, Luci, and son-in-law, Patrick J. Nugent, for the return to the family ranch to discuss funeral arrangements.

Nixon leads nation in tribute to LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — Led by President Nixon, the nation paid tribute today to Lyndon B. Johnson as the president whose domestic achievements were overshadowed until his death by the war he couldn't end.

"No man had greater dreams for America than Lyndon Johnson," said Nixon of his predecessor in the White House. "Even as we mourn his death, we are grateful for his life, which did so much to make those dreams into realities."

In a refrain echoing through the appraisals by many of Johnson's associates, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said:

"As President, his brilliant leadership on the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965 have earned him a place in the history of civil rights alongside Abraham Lincoln."

"And his efforts to help the poor, the sick and the oppressed stand out as landmarks of America's concern for those too weak to help themselves."

Former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, who coalesced antiwar forces behind his surprisingly strong challenge to Johnson's expected bid for re-nomination by the Democratic party in 1968, said of the dead president:

"If he was to be faulted, it was not for lack of dedication or lack of commitment, but for taking upon himself or to himself too much of the burden and of the responsibilities of government."

On March 31, 1968, Johnson shocked the nation with the announcement that he would neither seek nor accept renomination.

Johnson's vice president, Hubert H. Humphrey, reflected on that day:

"He and Lady Bird, Luci and her husband came up to our apartment. He said 'could I talk to you alone?' Then he told me what he was going to do. He said 'I've done everything I could to try and end the war. I've tried the Pope, I've tried the Russians, I've tried the Poles, the French... I'm going to make another supreme effort. Hubert, I want peace in Vietnam more than anything.'"

But Humphrey recalled that Johnson believed he could not bring the warring parties into peace negotiations unless he withdrew from the campaign and purged the bid of any political taint.

Johnson's defense secretary, Robert S. McNamara, said:

"Whatever history's verdict may be on the Johnson role in Vietnam, I have no doubt that history will record President Johnson's actions to redress the discriminations which had been suffered by the poor, the blacks and the disadvantaged as one of the most important advances by our society in this century."

Ohio law void?

Abortion ruling attacked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roman Catholic church leaders have deplored the Supreme Court decision guaranteeing American women the right to have medical abortions during the first six months of pregnancy.

Otherwise, there was mixed reaction to the court's 7-2 ruling Monday that the states may interfere with this "right of privacy" only in about the last three months of pregnancy, when the unborn child is developed enough to live outside the mother.

John Cardinal Krol of Philadelphia, the highest-ranking Catholic prelate in the United States, called the decision "an unspeakable tragedy" and said "it is hard to think of any decision in the 200 years of our history which has had more disastrous implications for our stability as a civilized society."

Patrick Cardinal O'Boyle of

Washington, D.C., called the decision a catastrophe for America. "It is a shocking display of a few men arrogating too themselves the judgment at what stage the life of an unborn child may be terminated," he said.

Gov. David Hall of Oklahoma said the issue is one for state legislatures. "I deeply regret this additional intrusion by the federal government into matters the state should resolve," he said.

On the other hand, the leading proponent of liberalized abortions in the California legislature said the decision makes "abortion on request" available throughout the nation.

"The state has no overriding interest which would permit it to interfere in this very private decision," said State Sen. Anthony Beilenson, a Beverly Hills Democrat.

State Rep. Sarah Weddington of Texas, a leading figure in the lawsuit that led to Monday's ruling, said in Austin she was "very pleased because of the impact this decision will have on the lives of the many women who in the past have suffered...."

The ruling struck down a Texas law that had made it a crime for doctors to terminate pregnancies except "for the purpose of saving the life of the mother."

The court also disapproved by a 7-2 vote provisions of a Georgia law. These required advance approval of a hospital committee and concurrence of two additional physicians before a woman could have an abortion recommended by her doctor.

Thirty other states have laws similar to the Texas statute. Thirteen additional states have laws like Georgia's. Since the handful of remaining states already permitted medical abortions virtually upon demand, the ruling will have nationwide impact.

The court's majority opinion, by Justice Harry A. Blackmun, rested largely on the "right of privacy" and the medical view that in the early stages of pregnancy an abortion is no more of a risk than birth itself.

The state attorney general's office won't say, but some Ohioans believe the state's abortion law has gone out the window as a result of a U.S. Supreme Court decision on the rights of women to obtain an abortion during the first three months of pregnancy.

Monday's ruling by the high court came on a challenge to a Texas abortion law.

Benson Wolman, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union in Ohio says the ACLU is prepared to help any woman in the state who

Flu situation seems better

School administrators agree that any tendency toward "epidemic" proportions in absenteeism because of London flu or other winter-time maladies has been reversed and, although absences are not back to normal, it's "better than last week."

Miami Trace High School has about 15 per cent absent today, county elementary schools around 10 per cent, Washington High School is a little above normal, but below earlier figures, Junior High had 54 absent Tuesday morning, about half last week's absentees, and the city elementary schools have maintained normal attendance throughout the period.

Armco's Metal Products Division reported very little change from normal in absenteeism; Mac Tool, Inc. said they have more absences than normal and "several people working who should be home"; Pennington Bread, Inc. reported only normal absences.

The News in Brief

LIBERTY CENTER, Ohio (AP) — Investigators from the state fire marshal's office are probing a blaze that swept through a grain elevator complex here early today.

Fire Chief Burdette Spiess said the fire, which destroyed the older portion of the Liberty Center Elevator Association complex, was of "suspicious origin."

MENTOR, Ohio (AP) — Lake County commissioners are apparently headed for a showdown with a county juvenile court judge who has refused to trim his court budget.

Judge Ross D. Avellone's $557,291 budget for 1973 is about 10 per cent of the county's total budget of $5.5 million, and Commissioner John Platz Jr. said the amount "is the biggest inflated budget in the county."

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Mayor Ralph Perk has threatened to send his own investigators to Washington, D.C., to learn why Cleveland mounted policemen weren't permitted to march in President Nixon's inaugural parade.

The 12 men and horses arrived in Washington by van, but the men said they were prevented from unloading the horses by an unidentified Army colonel.

Volcano eruption endangers 5,000

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — An armada of fishing boats and planes evacuated 5,000 Icelanders early today from a small island off the southeast coast after a volcano on the island erupted for the first time in history.

By dawn the lava had reached the outskirts of Vestmannaeyjar, the only town on the island of Heymaey. But by then only 300 of the 5,300 islanders remained to be taken off.

The sea around Heymaey was lit up like a busy street by the lights of the hundreds of fishing boats the government rushed to the island southeast off Reykjavik.

Ashore the lava had not reached the houses of Vestmannaeyjar yet, but several were ablaze from the heat of the flow.

The islanders drove their livestock and pets to the harbor and the airstrip in hopes of getting them away. There were no casualties reported and no panic.

One islander, Jon Stefansson, said he was getting up to go fishing at 2 a.m. when he heard "terrible noises."

"Then I heard a siren from the fire station and thought there must be a fire somewhere in town," he continued. "The volcano just didn't enter my mind. But when I looked out of the window, it was plain what had happened."

Women, children and hospital patients were flown out despite a rain of hot ash falling on the airstrip. The other residents left by boat. Officials for a time feared the harbor at Vestmannaeyjar might be closed by the oozing lava, but this danger did not materialize.

Vestmannaeyjar is only 150 yards from Helgafell, the volcano that had not erupted since the Vikings discovered Iceland in 864 A.D. But the first outpouring of lava flowed away from the town and into the Atlantic, and it was some time before the flow moved toward the houses.

Abortion ruling

wishes to have an abortion, but might be blocked from having it. Wolman says this would be one way of finding out whether the ruling makes Ohio's law null and void.

Dr. Myron Moorehead of Columbus says he is not opposed to being the doctor in any test case to have the state law ruled unconstitutional.

Dr. David McCalmont of the Abortion Education Society called the ruling, "wonderful news." He said it would take care of "80 per cent of our problems." He referred to the 14,000 Ohio women who left the state for New York during 1972 to obtain abortions during their first three months of pregnancy.

Presently, Ohio law bars abortions except in cases where a mother's life is endangered by the pregnancy.

Despite lack of an official decision on the Ohio law, two physicians have suggested that doctors in the state will consider the Supreme Court's ruling to be a go-ahead to perform abortions.

One of the two, who said he has skirted the law and performed abortions in Ohio, said he believes the decision "effectively eliminates the Ohio abortion law. I believe there will be some doctors who will start performing abortions immediately, but I don't know who the first one will be."

Psychiatrist Adolph Haas, who also says he has skirted the law by signing affidavits stating that a woman would commit suicide unless she was aborted, agreed.

Dr. Edward G. Kilroy, coordinator of the Ohio Right to Life Society said his group will seek new legislation within the limits of the decision to prohibit abortions.

The president of the Cleveland Society of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, Dr. Richard Nowak, said Monday, "there are all kinds of patients and all kinds of doctors, so the Supreme Court should have provided some kind of built-in guidelines and consultations. Without any disciplining," he continued, "this situation could get out of hand."

Cuyahoga County Prosecutor John Corrigan paints one picture of results of the decision.

"In my opinion," Corrigan says, "the decision has licensed unscrupulous doctors to run abortion mills for the first three months of pregnancy." He adds, "... there are an unscrupulous few who will do abortions strictly for profit, without regard to the ramifications."

Johnson funeral

Robb, made plans to fly to Texas from Charlottesville, Va., where Robb is a third-year law student at the University of Virginia. A plane was provided by President Nixon.

The news of Johnson's death drew immediate tributes from the White House, the halls of Congress and the streets of America.

Johnson's death came 28 days after that of former President Harry S. Truman, leaving the nation without a living former chief executive. Nixon ordered flags on all federal buildings, already lowered to mark Truman's death, flown at half staff for 30 days following Johnson's death.

At a news conference in Austin several hours after Johnson's death, Tom Johnson, a former business associate and news secretary not related to the family, gave this account of the seizure:

At 4:50 p.m. EST, Johnson, who routinely took a nap after lunch, called the ranch switchboard and asked that a Secret Service agent be sent to his bedroom. Agents Ed Nowland and Harry Harris dashed 100 yards from their quarters with a portable resuscitator. They arrived in about two minutes and began to treat the former president. The third agent, Mike Howard, arrived within minutes and the trio attempted mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and external heart massage.

"They found Johnson lying on his back, on the floor next to his bed," Tom Johnson said. "They said it appeared he was dead."

Unable to revive Johnson, the agents summoned Abbott and with Mrs. Dave Malachuk and pilot Barney Hewitt, they set out for San Antonio in the Johnson plane.

Abbott pronounced Johnson dead after the aircraft landed at San Antonio. The finding was confirmed aboard the plane by Dr. George McGranahan, who took over as Johnson's personal physician last July.

It was aboard a plane in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963 that Vice President Johnson was sworn in as 36th President of the United States after Kennedy was gunned down during a motorcade through city streets. Johnson, who was riding in the motorcade behind Kennedy, was not injured.

Five days after the assassination of Kennedy, which cast a pall of despair across the nation, Johnson went before a joint session of Congress and in a speech interrupted 30 times by applause, the Democrat from Texas declared:

"An assassin's bullet has thrust upon me the awesome burden of the presidency. I am here today to say that I need your help. I cannot bear this burden alone. I need the help of all Americans and all America."

He went on to ask congressional action on civil rights and social legislation left in the seed stage by Kennedy's death.

The presidency culminated the career of the one-time school teacher who was born in a three-room home near Stonewall on Aug. 27, 1908, the eldest of five children of Rebekah Baines and Samuel Ealy Johnson. The oil boom had not yet come to Texas and the Johnson family was extremely poor.

From his father, Johnson inherited a love for politics. Both Samuel Johnson and his grandfather, Sam Johnson Sr., served in the Texas legislature.

Stock list declines

NEW YORK (AP) —

The stock market did not respond today to a report that a Vietnam peace agreement had been initiated.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 4.36 to 1014.45.

Before the peace report it had been down 3.91 on word of an impending rise in banks' prime interest rate and drops in the dollar's exchange value abroad today. The Dow made a mild nudge upward on the peace report, then settled back down.

On the New York Stock Exchange, declines held a 783-to-390 lead over advances, with 1,610 issues changing hands in rather light trading.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,400 common stocks was down 0.32 to 63.86. At the American Stock Exchange, the price-change index was off 0.06 to 26.18.

Elections board ponders evidence in Lukens case

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — The Butler County Board of Elections is delaying any decision in the case of state Sen. Donald "Buz" Lukens until all board members can review testimony made at a hearing Monday.

Lukens, who appeared at the hearing along with his attorney, John Zonak, is trying to free himself of a five-year suspension from seeking an elective office in Ohio.

Ohio Secretary of State Ted Brown invoked the suspension after being informed by the board of elections that it had not received an expense account for Lukens' recent, successful senate campaign until after the Dec. 22 deadline.

Three of the board's four members heard testimony Monday but the other member, Ralph Pagana, is hospitalized.

Board member Richard Koehler said he doesn't know just how much meaning, if any, a board decision will have.

"Do you feel this board has discretion to decide anything in this case?" Koehler asked Zonak.

Zonak said he believes the board does have authority to rule in the matter.

The board was told by Brown to hear testimony and take evidence in the Lukens' case, but wasn't given any other specific instructions.

Opinion And Comment

Sound food labeling rules

The Food and Drug Administration may have bitten off more than it can chew in ordering broad revision of food labeling practices. The enormous program it has undertaken relies on voluntary compliance rather than compulsion, and the FDA does not have anything like sufficient personnel to police the new rules.

In this connection officials of the agency do make a persuasive point. It is that competition probably will give food processors a strong incentive to comply. The assumption is that as consumers grow accustomed to labels giving them nutritional data on packaged food they will demand this. That would place non-complying manufacturers at a disadvantage.

On balance, there is much cause for gratification in the FDA orders affecting most processed food. When the regulations have taken hold, consumers will be able to tell quickly just what a package contains: the number of servings, a breakdown of protein, carbohydrate and fat content, the number of calories, and the percentage of "recommended daily allowances" of proteins, vitamins, minerals.

This is the sort of information now

denied to the consumer in many cases. Other regulations are aimed at elimination of false or misleading dietary and therapeutic claims.

At present there is a lot of guesswork about buying processed food. The new FDA rules will go a long way toward eliminating this.

The one major problem, as suggested above, lies in the extent of compliance with the regulations. If the voluntary compliance approach does not work out satisfactorily, then compulsion will have to be tried. Detailed labeling of processed food is important enough to warrant strict enforcement if necessary.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Europeans say pot is dangerous

I'll never forget the anguished wail of a liberal housewife whose teenage children, going one beyond her in permissiveness, had nibbled at experimenting with harsher drugs. "Gawd," she said, "I wish they'd go back to booze."

That was in the high Woodstock Nation period, when the use of LSD, heroin and other hard drugs was cresting. Since then, we are reliably informed by our high school and college friends, there has been a general tendency to draw back from extremes to the pot-smoking middle.

The use of marijuana, or the cannabis plant, remains in the mode as something that is "safe"; it is, so a sizeable coterie of the young insists, no more dangerous or addicting than the gin favored in Scott Fitzgerald's romantic heyday.

The chance that we are drawing closer to the time that the use of marijuana, if not the actual sales, will be legalized has been enhanced by a curious concatenation. On the Left, the Ralph Nader-blessed Consumers Union (which can find no value in Vitamin E, a dietary supplement endorsed by more than one heart specialist) has put out a report calling for the legalization of pot. On the Right, Bill Buckley's National Review has published a pro-pot article, and chairman Bill has himself commended the article to the extent that he finds it unrealistic to treat cannabis smokers as criminals.

AS A LIBERTARIAN, I could accept the theory that it is ridiculous to try to police the sumptuary habits of people by law where the sale of a cumulative poison is not involved. If marijuana is indeed no more harmful than whisky in moderation, or beer when you're having more than one, then it is sheer hypocrisy for anyone save an old-time Prohibitionist to sanction jail for its use. But if marijuana is a demonstrated cumulative poison, then it would be criminal indeed to abet its distribution.

Despite Consumers Union and National Review, the jury is still out on the subject of marijuana. We move in a curious world in which evidence, pro and con pot smoking, reaches the public by a most uncertain trickle. Last September, before Consumers Union issued its report and National Review gave space to its pro-pot witness, a U. S. Senate Internal Security Subcommittee took the testimony of Dr. Olav Braenden, a scientist who has been director of the United Nations Narcotics Laboratory in Geneva for 16 years.

What Dr. Braenden had to say is extremely sobering, not to say frightening. He brought to the attention of the senators a whole sheaf of European documents that "point strongly to the conclusion that marijuana may be far more dangerous than had previously been believed."

Sens. Eastland and Gurney, listening to Dr. Braenden were visibly shaken. They heard the contention of Prof. W. D. Paton of Oxford University that

"cannabis builds up in the fatty tissues of the body — which include the brain — in the manner of DDT." Dr. Paton reported that cannabis "produces fetal deformities in animals in the manner that resembles the damage done by thalidomide."

DR. PATON'S findings were corroborated by a research paper taken from The Lancet, a British medical journal. According to this paper, 10 youthful patients, with histories of marijuana use extending from 3 to 11 years, "showed serious brain atrophy comparable to the atrophy that normally takes place between the ages of 70 and 90."

On a less portentous plane, Dr. O. Rafelson of the Central State Hospital of Copenhagen, has discovered a considerable impairment of driving ability after "oral ingestion of cannabis." Other European scientists whose findings have impressed Dr. Braenden include Dr. A. M. Campbell of the Bristol Royal United Hospital in Britain, Prof. C. Miras of the University of Athens, and Dr. Cornelius Salamink of the University of Utrecht in Holland.

Needless to say, the Consumers Union report makes no reference to the work of these men. Nor did the National Review pro-pot article dwell on their findings. So let's have another go at the subject of pot before we jump from frying pan to fire and legalize its use.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

Mexico stresses its reforms

MEXICO CITY — Should anyone north of the border be taking notice, this happens to be a moment of historic change. The Latin America of the guerrilla, the romantic revolutionary, is all but gone.

Fidel Castro is no longer exporting his failed revolution. The belief here is that Washington and Havana are privately drawing together not only over the hijacking issue but in a broader context that could lead eventually to at least a limited renewal of relations.

Che Guevara's attempt to foment a revolution in Bolivia came to a pitiful end. He was the last hero of the romantic revolution, with the posters showing his dark, handsome face on Paris kiosks and in Tokyo Socialist halls. The campesinos, the depressed peasantry, simply did not respond to his call to rise up against the oppressors.

The experiment going forward here in Mexico is designed to achieve a new social and economic base. President Luis Echeverria Alvarez in the first two years of his six-year term has introduced a whole series of reforms from taxation to improved land use and an assault on pollution which is so visible in this smog-ridden city.

colonialism. This will come if foreign investors are allowed to take over the Mexican economy. His program, therefore, calls for 51 per cent of Mexican ownership in foreign corporations, with large areas restricted entirely to domestic operation.

A broader and deeper concern is with the plight of the Third World — Latin America, Asia, Africa — as the supplier of raw materials for the developed world of the United States, Western Europe, Japan and the Soviet Union. Prices for those materials tend to move steadily down while with inflation in the industrialized nations the price of manufactured goods exported to the Third World goes steadily up.

THIS, the president says with intense conviction, makes slaves of those who perform sell on a depressed market the raw stuff that fuels the machines of the advanced nations. One answer is for the United Nations to set a scale of investment which the developed nations would put into the underdeveloped world. This would

All rights-of-way for an oil pipeline across Fayette County were recorded. F. E. Whiteside was the county recorder.

Rita J. Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Miller, of Milledgeville, was announced as the first baby born to Fayette County parents in 1943.

The City Teachers Association asked the Board of Education for a pay raise. A. B. Murray was the superintendent.

Davis Enterprises, headed by Dr. Alexander Davis, received a 60,000 pound carload of vitamins for compounding vitamin tablets at his laboratory on Cherry Street.

The P. Hagerty Shoe Co. was employing 150 people and was advertising for 100 more to take care of a growing backlog of orders.

A debate was scheduled between teams of high school students here, Circleville and Lancaster.

establish a balance between the two halves that seem increasingly to go their separate ways.

How it would be enforced is another matter, since in the developed world faith in the United Nations falls far short of Echeverria's passionate conviction.

Labor-intensive projects in the pattern of the New Deal are part of the president's domestic program so that badly needed foreign exchange does not go for expensive imported machines. As part of the aid Mexico furnished Nicaragua to rebuild the ruined capital of Managua, Echeverria is sending teams to demonstrate the labor-intensive technique.

THE SHADOW of the giant to the north is omnipresent whether as a negative or a positive force. Long gone is the enthusiasm of the Allianza por Progreso. Except for technical assistance, Mexico is no longer a recipient of American aid.

But the power of the United States is not alone in productivity, in the bounty of a mechanized agriculture, in a huge military establishment. It is also the power of example.

If with restraints on wages and prices removed there is increased inflation, the result as reflected in Latin America will be serious. If with Nixon economics American cities continue to deteriorate, the example will not be lost on those who oppose the Echeverria reforms.

This is part of the equation when the door seems open for constructive change.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

No redress for dress code

DEAR ABBY: Man, do we have a problem! About 100 junior and senior high school students in Oklahoma need your help. Ours is a smalltown school and the school board is so old fashioned it isn't even funny. They set up a dress code for girls saying we can't wear our dresses any shorter than three inches above our kneecaps. And they even tell the boys how long to wear their hair. They can't even have it any longer than their collars.

Abby, everyone is so uptight here they are failing in their work. Do you honestly believe that a person's dress affects his behavior?

IN JAIL IN MULBROW, OKLA. DEAR IN: I hate to let you down, but serious studies show that a person's dress DOES affect his behavior. Kids who dress like they're going to a hay ride are more inclined to horse around.

DEAR ABBY: I came up with what I thought was a brilliant idea in the way of New Year's resolutions for married folk.

The husband should make up a list of resolutions for his wife to follow, and the wife should make up a list of resolutions for her husband to follow. For example, he might have me resolve never to ask him to stop on his way home and pick up something from the store, because that's my job and I have all day to do it. And I might have him resolve always to call me and tell me if he knows he'll be late getting home.

My husband told me he thought it was very foolish idea and I should forget it.

Personally, I can't see what anyone would have to lose except some bad habits that irritates the spouse. On Jan. 1, both parties would sit down together, exchange lists, and bargain. You know, "Okay, I'll agree to Number One on your list, if you'll agree to Number Two on mine."

What do you think of this idea? Mrs. T. IN JOPLIN, MO. DEAR MRS. T.: I think it's so good, since it missed New Year's, any Monday morning would be a good starting date.

DEAR ABBY: You wrote, "You will always be your mother's daughter regardless of WHO your father's wife is." You are wrong. It should be "WHOM" because the entire phrase "who your father's wife is," is the object of the preposition "of."

Should your experts on English language prove me incorrect, I bow to the fact that language usage is a living thing, and as such is always changing.

WIFE AND TEACHER DEAR WIFE AND TEACHER: Don't teach the above, because you are wrong. "Who" is correct, because it is the subject of the clause, not the object.

The Army's new officer rating system supposedly gives less encouragement to "yes men." But then what happens to the idea that orders are orders?

An engineer proposes a giant multi-purpose concrete tube across Alaska, a sort of pipeline to end all pipelines. Not to mention pipeline controversies.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD: With your indulgence, we the Fayette County Board of Commissioners would like to submit our first report to the citizens.

The rates of taxation among the townships vary from a low of 27.60 mills to a high of 29.50. We are speaking only of townships. There are other political subdivisions, such as Washington C. H., Bloomingburg, Jeffersonville, Octa and Milledgeville, for the benefit of which taxes are also voted and levied.

Of these various millages, you might be surprised to learn that only 3.85 mills go for countywide use. Some of this millage is voted by the people, over which the commissioners can exercise only routine jurisdiction. An example of this is the county mental health levy (retarded children) which now amounts to 35 hundredths (.35) mills. Actually, the commissioners exercise discretionary jurisdiction over only 3 mills of your taxes. This millage is not voted but levied within the 10 mills mandated by law.

The townships share in the over all millage in varying amounts ranging from a low of 1.80 mills to a high of 3.70 mills.

By far the largest share of the overall millage goes to schools, amounting to 21.95 mills (18.40 operation, 1.70 bond retirement and 1.85 joint vocational). Percentage-wise it breaks down as follows: County 13.7 per cent (the commissioners have discretionary jurisdiction over 10.7 per cent of this the rest is voted by the public), townships 8.2 per cent, and schools 78.1 per cent.

We hope this is somewhat informative. We expect to follow with other articles of similar nature dealing with other subjects.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Today is Tuesday, Jan. 23, the 23rd day of 1973. There are 342 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1799, French troops captured the Italian city of Naples.

On this date: In 1542, England's Henry VIII took the title King of Ireland.

In 1845, the U.S. Congress ruled that all national elections would take place on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November.

In 1920, the Dutch refused to surrender ex-Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany to the allies for punishment as a war criminal.

In 1943, in World War II, British troops entered the North African city of Tripoli.

In 1932, Franklin D. Roosevelt announced that he was a candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

In 1941, Charles A. Lindberg appeared before the House Foreign Affairs Committee and testified against the proposed lend-lease agreement to aid the Allies in World War II.

Ten years ago: The United States urged the European Common Market to admit Britain as a member.

Five years ago: North Korea seized the U.S. Navy ship "Pueblo," and held the 83 crewmen as spies.

One year ago: Egypt's government imposed new luxury taxes in a program to prepare for another war with Israel.

Today's birthdays: Former Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxembourg is 77. French Actress Jeanne Moreau is 45.

Impetus for health insurance

As the saying goes, first the good news: the average of hospital room rates throughout the country went up only 11.6 per cent during 1972, the lowest annual increase since 1967. The bad news is that the 11.6 rise, about double the pace of increase officially permitted under the wage-price freeze on health services, brought the average cost of a day's stay in a community hospital to a chilling $105.30.

This is almost twice as much as the comparable figure a mere six years ago. In the intervening period there has been intensive discussion of the problem of rising costs: there has been talk of consolidating hospital services to lessen duplications, and of various other steps that might be taken to make more effective use of health care personnel and facilities. With the average daily figure now past $100, and still rising, the urgency of reforms is more evident than ever.

Something else is evident, at least to all but those who hold out against anything that smacks of national health insurance. The nation is plainly confronted with a need for some form of such insurance which would spread out the cost over the entire population. The principle has been put to the test by the Social Security system over a period of almost 40 years, and has proved to be sound. The essential question is how best to apply this principle to health care. Congress should feel a strong obligation to resolve this question, and act accordingly, with as little delay as possible.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 24

ARIES

(March 21 to April 20)

Day may not seem to hold much opportunity at first, but if you look closely, you will find it has many advantages. Results will be largely up to YOU.

TAURUS

(April 21 to May 21)

You may find it easier to do things yourself instead of depending on others who do not wish to cooperate. Conquer yourself to conquer the world.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

Don't get caught in foolish maneuvers, time-consuming, pointless conversation. Listen and learn, and give good suggestions a try.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

Think twice before you voice that strong opinion. You may need a change of words, even thoughts, after a second reviewing. Avoid pessimism and contrariness.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Day calls for better-than-ordinary action and forethought. Returns can be fine (though not all immediate) with your steady, knowing cooperation.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

This is a day for aggressive action. Aim for your goals in a swift, sure manner. Details may not be crucially important but are still part of the pattern.

An auspicious day for business ventures. This is a period in which to give your finest performance, to capitalize on your gift of good management.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Counting one's blessings makes every picture rosier, but DON'T count returns you have not and MAY NOT receive. Mixed influences; use care in all things.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Without much planetary assistance, you can still net top returns now but, before acting, plan well, be sure of facts and details, and DON'T procrastinate.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Important now: Common sense.

Ohio cycle posse will stay together

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Matching up 36 sheriff's deputies, motorcycles and riding gear this weekend left Cuyahoga County Sheriff Ralph Kreiger exhausted, but it was worth it.

President Nixon, who invited Kreiger's volunteer motorcycle squad to lead his inaugural parade in Washington, D.C., Saturday, has promised to invite the squad to more parades during the next four years, Kreiger said.

He said Nixon told him to keep the team intact to ride as a presidential unit in parades such as the Rose Bowl or at New Orleans' Mardi Gras.

The motorcycle squad was invited to the inaugural parade after Nixon saw a smaller group of cyclists under Kreiger's direction perform during a campaign visit here last fall.

Kreiger said he recruited deputies from Lorain, Stark, Mahoning and Summit counties to fill out the squad to the 36 needed to form a giant "76" at the head of the inaugural parade.

He said the travel costs, uniforms and parts needed to match up the Harley Davidson motorcycles probably will run to about $250,000, but that most of it had already been covered by donations. In addition, each of the deputies sacrificed a week's pay.

"The taxpayers have paid for nothing," said Kreiger.

Marriage vows exchanged in Grace Methodist Church

Miss Marilyn Irene Kelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Kelly, Rt. 1, Bloomingburg, became the bride of Jack Lee Fannin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Fannin, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, in Grace United Methodist Church.

The Rev. John W. Armentrout officiated for the double ring ceremony at 2:30 p.m. Jan. 6, before an altar enhanced with vases of white mums and greenery, and candelabra. The pews were marked with holly and dark rose ribbon.

Mrs. John Armentrout, organist, and Mrs. William Thornberry, vocalist, presented "Somewhere My Love" and "We've Only Just Begun."

Given in marriage by her father, and escorted down the aisle by her brother, Mahlon E. Kelly, of Dayton, the bride wore a princess A-line gown of velvet banded in Cluney lace enhanced with seed pearls. Her veil of four tier silk illusion was attached to a velvet Dior bow. She wore a diamond cross necklace, a gift of the groom, and tiny pearl earrings. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white miniature carnations, red sweetheart roses and a white orchid in the center.

Miss Connie K. Swigert, of Jeffersonville, was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Phyllis G. Fannin, of Jeffersonville, and Miss Diana K. Lewis, of Xenia. They all wore formal princess gowns of rose red velvet with long white lace sleeves with velvet cuffs with pearl buttons. They wore matching bow headpieces, and carried red roses. Each wore a bell necklace with a pearl clapper, gifts of the bride.

William Thornberry, of Springfield, served as best man. Seating the wedding guests were Robert Thornberry, of Jeffersonville, Toby Glass, of Jamestown, Kenneth J. Kelly, brother of the bride and Jeff Thompson, of Bloomingburg.

The bride's mother wore a dress and jacket ensemble of dusty rose with black accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore an aqua knit dress with jeweled buckle and trim on the bodice. She, too, wore black accessories. Both wore cymbidium orchid corsages.

Hostesses for the reception held in Fellowship Hall following the wedding ceremony were Mrs. Marion Pollard, Mrs. Warren Coil, Miss Kathy Hamblin and Miss Lana Jamison. Miss Relna Kelly presided at the guest book.

Girls helping with the rice were Marsha and Holley Pollard, Kathy Kelly, Andrea Stabler, all cousins of the bride. Assisting with the gifts were Miss Donna Swigert and Miss Julie Thompson.

The bride's table held a four-tiered wedding cake, encircled with holly and greenery. The cake was trimmed with dark pink roses and greens, and a bridal couple topped the cake. Punch was served from a crystal punch bowl. Silver appointments completed the setting.

The new Mrs. Fannin, a graduate of Greeneview High School, attended Ohio State University, and is employed at Jeffersonville Farm Service. Her husband, a graduate of Jeffersonville High School, is also engaged in farming and by Fannin and Son Elevator.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Fannin were hosts at a dinner at Anderson's Restaurant following rehearsal on Friday evening.

The couple will reside at Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, St. 41-NW.

Wedding in Wilmington

Miss Patricia Kay Trackett and Bruce Williams exchanged marriage vows in the Church of Christ in Wilmington. Single candelabra accented with two vases of assorted flowers made the setting for the wedding.

The double ring candlelight ceremony was performed Jan. 6 by Mrs. Arthur Merkle, for the daughter of Mrs. Norman Trackett, Washington C.H., and the late Mr. Trackett, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oran Williams, of Fremont, Neb. Pete Eveland, organist, and a guitar duet composed of Roger Stage and Karen Brewer sang "The Wedding Song," "A Time for Us," "Pass it On" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride wore a gown of white peau fabric fashioned with A-line skirt and ruffled flounce with detachable chapel train, empire bodice with long, fitted sleeves and scoop neckline trimmed in ruffles and Venice lace. She wore a contour headpiece of illusion veiling trimmed in Venice lace. She carried a colonial bouquet centered with a cymbidium orchid.

Matron of honor for her sister was Mrs. Nancy Johnson, of Stittville, N.Y. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Barbara Tremittiere, of York, Pa., another sister, Miss Frank Williams, of Fremont, Nebr., sister of the groom, and Mrs. Karen Stage, of Wilmington.

The matron of honor wore a floor-length A-line pink velvet gown with pink and white crocheted trim. She carried a single pink rose. The bridesmaids wore A-line floor length gowns of pink and lavender with matching crocheted trim. Each carried a single yellow rose.

A reception followed at the Elks Lodge with hostesses Mrs. Nancy Reynolds, Mrs. Darlene Coleman, Miss Karen Haynie and Miss Sandy Campbell, all of Wilmington, and Mrs. Starr Gibson, of Sydney. Mrs. Linda Mar-

Open sandwiches feature tuna

TUNA AND RIPE OLIVE PUFF SANDWICHES — These open-face goodies may be stacked.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

We hope you like broiled open sandwiches as much as we do, for today we have a new recipe for these for you to consider trying.

One of the features of these sandwiches is that you can keep the main ingredients — tuna and ripe olives — for them on your pantryshelf. And this sandwich topping makes use of a couple of extra egg whites. By the way, these can be at hand in your freezer. We put extra egg whites in empty baby-food jars, in differing amounts, in our freezer and then they are on hand when needed. They thaw in a short time.

TUNA AND RIPE OLIVE PUFF SANDWICHES

- 1 can (6½ or 7 ounces) tuna
- ½ cup coarsely chopped canned ripe olives
- 1-3 cup mayonnaise
- ¼ cup finely chopped celery
- 1 tablespoon minced scallion
- 1 tablespoon minced parsley
- ¼ teaspoon dried crushed savory
- 3 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
- 2 egg whites
- 6 slices rye bread
- Butter

Whole pitted ripe olives, radish roses and celery for garnish.

Drain and flake tuna; mix in the chopped olives, mayonnaise, celery, scallion, parsley, savory and 1 tablespoon of the cheese.

In a small mixing bowl beat the egg whites until they hold stiff peaks. Gently fold into tuna mixture.

Toast bread on one side under broiler. Spread untoasted sides with butter. Spread tuna mixture generously over buttered side of each slice; sprinkle with remaining 2 tablespoons cheese.

Broil about 4 inches from high heat until topping is heated through and lightly browned.

Serve 2 slices, open-face style, for each portion. Or, if you like, stack 2 slices together to make a double open-face sandwich. Garnish with whole olives, radishes and celery.

Makes 3 servings.

Hot Line to help Ohio consumers

By H.J. CZERNIEJEWSKI
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Don't feel let down when a tape recording answers Ohio's new environment hot-line next month.

A real, live woman will deal with all complaints.

"The recording just lets us receive more calls," said the real, live woman behind the tape, Mrs. Adelle Mitchell, newly appointed ombudsman for the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency.

"I hope it doesn't turn people off," she said. "A citizen is concerned about a multitude of things — open burning, well pollution, air pollution, open dumping and burning at dump sites.

"Sometimes a citizen doesn't know where to take his complaint. Now he can call on the hot-line for help. That's my job."

Environmental questions often overlap divisions or departments and part of the new ombudsman's job is to steer complaints to the proper place. Perhaps a complaint will be against an industry already ordered to comply with anti-pollution standards. Mrs. Mitchell will so advise the complainant.

Whatever the problem, a member of the EPA said, Mrs. Mitchell is "a good listener, one who really knows her field." She has a master's degree in biology from the University of Vermont.

Mrs. Mitchell emphasized that she is available to industries as well as individuals. "Small industries are going to have problems in procedures for appeals," she said, but her major concern was to let Ohioans know she acts as a middleman between a citizen and the government.

"The assumption," she said, "is often that you are a spokesman for the agency. In a way, I'm supposed to be the citizen spokesman.

"The biggest problem is to maintain a position of separation from the agency. Government often tends to look at things as groups. I find it very frustrating when people don't look at others as individuals."

"If there is a large number of complaints in an area where there is no legislation, then I will present a recommendation for such legislation," said Mrs. Mitchell, who doesn't expect to turn into a lobbyist.

Noise pollution is one area where she might feel impelled to recommend legislation. "All I can do now is find out if the municipality they live in has an ordinance that applies," she said of noise complaints.

"It's going to be frustrating," said Mrs. Mitchell, contemplating the job ahead. "You're getting into an area of overlapping authority. Many decisions are made, there are many different viewpoints. I expect the first few months to be overwhelming. That's why an ombudsman should know the law well."

Mrs. Mitchell became well-acquainted with environment legislation when she was environmental coordinator for the Columbus League of Women Voters.

She said her husband, a biology professor at Ohio State University, and her three children are interested in her new position. "They understand what my job is all about," she said, adding "I hope" with a quick smile.

Mrs. Mitchell is visiting various government offices before the hotline is installed. "I have to find out exactly who is doing what in each division," she said.

Big cake too much for meeting

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—It was the pride and joy of Corbo's Dulceria when they rolled it out of the oven and trucked it over to the plush downtown restaurant—a 150-pound cream and strawberry cake that was dessert for 300 people.

Unfortunately, there were only 15 people at the Rubbermaid Co. salesmen's conference luncheon in the restaurant, and the cake seemed a little larger than the one they ordered.

"Somebody goofed," admitted Sal Corbo, owner of Corbo's Dulceria. He said a clerk got the Rubbermaid order confused with a weekend wedding.

"We thought it was a big company party," he said. The wedding order, he said, was "maybe for a second wedding."

The restaurant pushed several tables together to hold up the $200 cake while the matter was discussed. It was finally resolved to everyone's satisfaction.

Rubbermaid bought the big cake anyway but donated it to the Parmadale Children's Village. The 15 salesmen got a smaller substitute.

And the Corbo bakers went back to work on another 150-pound masterpiece for the Sunday wedding reception.

Crime grants approved for Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Grants totalling $198,776 have been approved for use in Ohio to help fight crime. The funds, made available under the federal Omnibus Crime Control Act, were awarded by Dr. David Sweet, Director of the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development.

Among the grants are two for Cuyahoga County, both for fighting narcotics and drug-related crime.

Other grants include:

- $30,000 for the Delaware police department to set up a community relations office and to train several members of the department.
- $20,000, for renovation of the heating and ventilation systems at the Lake County jail.
- A grant totaling $19,300 to provide police radio communications equipment for three Franklin County communities.
- $18,476 for renovation of the Wyandot County jail, and to provide a small juvenile detention area.

Say 'quality of debt' may be deteriorating

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — It is predictable as the phases of the year: When the economy is vigorous lenders are amiable. They might even plot little schemes to encourage you to borrow.

Most families don't need a great deal of encouragement to borrow when times are good and the future looks even better. It is then that they have the confidence to go into debt.

And while the debts build up, the rapidly expanding economy packs more income into the wallets of borrowers, who though pressed from time to time — that is, every month — are therefore able to pay the bills.

But then comes another predictable phase: Some borrowers and lenders begin to have a few financial scrapes. This is decidedly more frightening to the lender, and he begins to have doubts.

Shortly thereafter some lenders begin to raise questions about "the quality of debt." High quality debt is when bills are repaid on time. The ratio of delinquencies and failures reduces that quality.

The debt quality is lowered, for instance, when a businessman delays paying a bill within the allotted 30 days or whatever it may be, so that he can use his creditor's money interestfree.

This is one tipoff that a boom might be developing strains, that buyers and borrowers might be exceeding their capacity to pay. The reason the businessman can't pay his bills might be that his customers aren't paying theirs.

In the consumer area, the signs of deterioration show up as mortgage delinquencies and foreclosures, and slowness in repayment of installment loans at department stores and other retail outlets.

One of the first expressions of concern came at the annual convention this month of the National Association of Home Builders in Houston. "The quality of personal credit," said a banker, "may already have suffered some deterioration."

The latest data on mortgage delinquency, said Ira O. Scott, Jr., executive vice president of the Savings Bank Association of New York, "are not so serious as to indicate a crisis, but they do signal that credit quality is becoming more heavily strained."

Mortgage delinquency, he noted, rose to 3.82 per cent of the 4.5 million mortgages studied by the Mortgage Bankers Association, a figure he said was higher than at any other time in at least 10 years.

Scott maintains that early warnings seem to be flashing in the installment loan area. In a recession, he explained, it is typical for delinquencies of 30 days and over to rise sharply to around 2 per cent.

As economic conditions improve, he adds, the delinquency rate should drop to that which existed before the recession. Since the recession of 1970, however, the improvement has been halting and marked by relapses, he said.

"At latest reading, installment loan delinquencies, at 1.92 per cent, were higher than at any time during the last recession," he said.

It may be a little early to say whether the signs result from long-term pressures or are a temporary short circuit that can be fixed.

Urge recruitment of service industries

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The governor's Business and Employment Council has recommended that Ohio direct its recruiting efforts toward service industries with a faster rate of growth.

"Nearly all the new jobs" are being created in the service industries, Chairman George Dively said Monday, while the state has traditionally focused its recruitment efforts on manufacturing.

'Soybean update' session Thursday

With crop production techniques always changing, new varieties, new herbicides and new tillage practices, a "soybean update meeting" has been scheduled for Thursday in the Fayette County Extension Office meeting room, 319 S. Fayette St.

The program will begin at 10 a.m. with Dr. Gordon Ryder, Extension agronomist, explaining the results of soybean variety testing; Albert Baxter, Area Extension agronomist, talking about herbicides, and John Gruber, Fayette County agent, discussing the 1973 soybean and corn outlook.

At the afternoon session, beginning at 1 p.m., Dr. Ryder will talk about soybeans and diseases and about money-making tips, and Baxter will give a report on six years of soybean high yield demonstrations and a "new look" in Ohio State University soil testing.

The program, open to all soybean producers, will close at 3 p.m.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Three mid-season replacements in the current television year made their debuts over the weekend. One was merely good; the other two were great.

NBC's "Bobby Darin Show" is in the good category. It premiered Friday night with Darin in peak singing form.

It's fun to hear a singer who knows how to work with a big band. Too many vocalists fight them or get drowned out when the brass section kicks in.

Not Darin. He's in charge all the way. He's among the best of a vanishing breed — the skilled nightclub singer typified by such men as Tony Bennett and Joe Williams.

Darin's musical efforts were flawless and nicely complemented by the singing appearances of Burl Ives. Actress Dyan Cannon also took a turn at vocalizing and proved she is a good actress.

The over-all sheen of the show was dulled by flat comedy skits that just didn't come off.

Over at ABC, two great shows made their debut Saturday night. One was "Here We Go Again," the other "A Touch of Grace."

"Again" could be subtitled, "The Divorce That Came to Dinner." It's about a man and a woman, both divorced, who marry each other and settle down for another try at wedded bliss.

The problem is that the newlyweds, played by Larry Hagman and Diane Baker, live less than a mile from their respective former spouses, played by Dick Gautier and Nita Talbot.

This means they have the same friends, the same shopping centers and many miseries caused by running into their ex-spouses. It causes a certain amount of tension.

Ex-wife Judy, upon meeting her replacement, says, "And this must be Susan. You're much prettier than he described you."

Susan's sweet reply: "Thank you. You're much younger than he described you."

It's a funny show with good writing and acting from all concerned.

So is "Grace," despite an unlikely premise. It concerns an elderly widow (Shirley Booth) who is being wooed by an elderly gravedigger (J. Pat O'Malley).

"They say the older the bottle, the sweeter the wine," he tells her. To which she retorts: "Oh, they do, do they? Well, you better keep your cork in."

It's not a slam-bang "Maude" kind of show, but rather a quiet, carefully-sketched, warmly-written comedy about two lonely old people who manage to carry on with grace and humor.

It's worth seeing, if only to watch O'Malley stealing scenes like a genial burglar.

Canton Lehman zooms near cage poll lead

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Canton Lehman continues its spectacular rise in The Associated Press state high school basketball ratings and now is just one point away from the Class AAA lead.

The Polar Bears were ninth the first week of the ratings, No. 6 last week and No. 2 Monday with 179 points to 180 for Cleveland East Tech.

Coach Don Eddins' squad has put together a 25-game regular season winning streak.

However, Ohio's longest schoolboy victory string still belongs to Class A poll pacesetter Gnadenhuetten Indian Valley South with 37 in a row.

Indian Valley South, the defending Class AA state tournament champion, collected 189 points to 166 for runnerup Marion Pleasant.

A statewide panel of sports writers and broadcaster also kept Waverly solidly entrenched in the Class AA lead. The Tigers, 10-0, picked up 190 points to 132 for Columbus Ready, the new runnerup in the middle division. Ready has a 10-2 record.

East Tech, 11-2, had been tied with Hamilton Taft for the Class AAA leadership last week. Taft, however, lost to Cincinnati Princeton and tumbled to the No. 5 spot.

Barberton, breezing along with a 13-0 record, leaped five positions into third place in Class AAA while Newark held the No. 4 rung.

Mansfield Senior, third last week, took a 77-63 loss from Lorain King and dropped to No. 6. Columbus South was seventh, Boardman eighth, Springfield South ninth and Middletown tenth.

Willard, 13-0, leaped from fifth to third in Class AA and was followed by Steubenville Catholic, Rossford, Poland, Huron, Gallipolis, Albany Alexander and new face Tipp City, in order.

Fort Recovery, 14-0, remained the third-place power in Class A and then came Wapakoneta St. Joseph, Sebring, McDonald, Zanesville Rosecrans, Fostoria St. Wendelin, Strasburg and Greenwich South Central, new to the top ten.

Spitz voted top athlete

NEW YORK (AP) — Mark Spitz buried his image as an Olympic choker under a wave of gold medals at the Munich Games and today was a landslide winner as 1972 Associated Press Male Athlete of the Year.

The mustachioed Californian polled 405 votes from a national panel of sports newsmen. Golfer Jack Nicklaus was runnerup with 62 and baseball pitcher Steve Carlton received 61.

Clay Carroll named outstanding hurler

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati Reds relief ace Clay Carroll has been selected as the team's outstanding 1972 pitcher by the Cincinnati Chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Carroll, named to the All-Star team for the second straight year in 1972, posted a major league record 37 saves in his top major league season. He had a 6-4 record and 2.25 earned run average.

baseball sluggers from the Cincinnati Reds and Chicago White Sox, respectively, tied for fourth with 20 votes.

Spitz, a flop at the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City, churned to an unprecedented seven golds. He established a world record on every journey to the winner's platform.

His was the happy, heroic side of Munich. Spitz' final victory came eight hours before tragedy struck on that infamous Black Tuesday of murder and terror.

Spitz, a Jew, left in secrecy after Arab gunmen made a murderous intrusion at residence of Israel's Olympic team. He had to come home to feel like a hero again.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Toledo goalie Glenn Ramsay, the Grand Old Man of the International Hockey League, will be in the nets for the North squad tonight when the IHL All-Star game resumes in Hara Arena.

Panthers host McClain, visit Franklin Heights

Miami Trace's Panthers did themselves a king-sized favor by scratching back into the tight South Central Ohio League basketball race last Friday night by scoring a convincing 74-47 win over a revived Hillsboro team.

But there's no napping in sight for head coach Jan Stauffer's third edition as a vigorous doubleheader looms on Miami Trace's docket this weekend.

The Panthers will plunge back into the SCOL fireworks Friday night when they entertain the remarkably aggressive Greenfield Tigers before embarking on a non-league road trip to Franklin Heights Saturday night.

MIAMI TRACE, which holds a balanced 3-3 SCOL record and 6-6 all-games chart, will be looking for their 21st win over Greenfield in the series between the two teams which dates back to the Panthers' basketball baptism in the 1961-62 season.

The Panthers own a lopsided 20-3 lead in the series with Greenfield. Prior to the 1969-70 season the Tigers had never experienced a victory over a Miami Trace cage team.

A win over Greenfield would keep Miami Trace only two games off the pace being set in the 45th SCOL title bout by Circleville and Washington C. H., depending on the outcome of the two other league shooting matches Friday.

Miami Trace snapped a frustrating three-game nosedive with its solid

Spaghetti supper plans to be set

The Washington C. H. Blue Lion basketball boosters will hold their regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the WSHS cafeteria, according to Dick Witherspoon, president of the backing organization.

Witherspoon noted that final plans for the booster club's annual spaghetti supper will be discussed. The spaghetti supper will be held starting at 4:30 p.m. Friday prior to Washington C. H.'s game with Wilmington.

sacking of Hillsboro and will be hoping for its second win of the season over Greenfield when head coach Sam Snyder's high-scoring Tigers invade for the 8 p.m. contest.

Greenfield, which improved its all-games record to a 4-8 level with a non-league win over Jackson Saturday night, is winless inside the SCOL chase, but is blessed with squirming, whirlwind guard Buddy Kennedy, the SCOL's top point producer.

The 5-foot-8 Kennedy is atop the loop's scoring race with neat 20.8 credentials on the basis of 250 points in 12 Greenfield outings. The senior peppercorn also is second on the SCOL games list with even 20.0 marksmanship for the Tigers who have swished the nets with an average of 71.6 points a game, but who have given up over 75 markers in their 12 contests.

TWO OTHER players appear on Greenfield's scoresheet with double figure averages. Larry Crabtree, an aggressive 5-foot-11 senior, and slender senior George Hamilton boast 15.1 and 10.1 averages, respectively.

Bob Trego, a husky 5-11 senior, is Greenfield's pivotman, while spunky 5-7 senior Danny Raikes will join Kennedy in the McClain backcourt. Mike Anderson, a 6-0 senior, Dan Strain, a 5-9 junior, and Curtis Carmen, a 6-1 senior, are Greenfield's top spares.

The Panthers will be trying to improve a 3-3 record against outside competition when they visit Franklin Heights Saturday.

The tiny Falcons, who had only three lettermen from last year's team, are suffering a miserable season with a 2-11 all-games record. Both wins have come inside the Columbus Metro League where they stand 2-6.

Larry Ferst, a 5-foot-11 sophomore guard, has been the top pointmaker for fourth-year head coach Bob Cawley's Franklin Heights bunch. Dwain Haag, a 6-0 senior, Mark Belcastro, a 5-11 senior, and Doug Davis, a 6-0 senior, are Cawley's veterans, while Mike Blount, a 5-11 junior, has shouldered a bulk of the scoring burden for the Falcons.

West seeks 3rd All-Star cage win

CHICAGO (AP) — With Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Rick Barry missing, the West will be hard pressed tonight to score a third straight victory over the East in the National Basketball Association's 23rd All-Star game.

Chicago will host the classic for the first time and a capacity crowd of 20,000 is expected for the nationally televised contest, ABC, 9 p.m., EST.

Jabbar, the former Lew Alcindor and super star of the Milwaukee Bucks, announced his withdrawal Monday night for "personal reasons."

Barry, the high-scoring ace of the Golden State Warriors, suffered an ankle injury in Milwaukee Sunday and had to withdraw. Jabbar will be replaced by Bob Love of the Chicago Bulls and Barry's replacement will be Connie Hawkins of the Phoenix Suns.

It was not known to what extent Jabbar's withdrawal had to do with an incident over the weekend when seven members of a Muslim sect to which Jabbar belonged were killed in Washington, D.C. Jabbar once owned the residence where the killings took place but had donated it to the Muslim group.

Without Jabbar, West Coach Bill Sharman of the Los Angeles Lakers will have only two pivotmen—Wilt Chamberlain of the Lakers and Nate Thurmond of Golden State.

George Foreman wins crown in ring upset

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — The boxing world woke up today with a new heavyweight champion, a 24-year-old former delinquent whose mild manners and tender heart belie a pair of the most devastating fists the game has seen.

George Foreman sent Joe Frazier spinning to the ice blue canvas six times Monday night and stopped the fierce, hardpunching defending champ in 1:35 of the second round in a staggering upset.

Foreman appeared almost on the verge of tears moments afterward when newsmen swooped down on him in his tight little dressing room in the catacombs of Kingston's National Stadium.

"I didn't want to hurt him any more," he said. "I kept begging Yancey Durham (Frazier's trainer and manager) to stop it."

The swiftness of the turnover of boxing's most prized crown was almost unbelievable.

Frazier, a brawling ex-slaughterhouse butcher, had flailed his way through 29 opponents as a pro, knocking out 25 of them, and 22 months ago had beaten Muhammad Ali in the so-called Fight of the Century.

Matched against the untested Foreman on this sultry tropical island in a bizarre atmosphere, Frazier had been installed a 3 1/2 to 1 favorite.

Certainly, he and his supporters had no idea that he would lose the title under such circumstances and thus forfeit what promoters had said would be a $20 million extravaganza between Frazier and Ali in June, probably in Houston's Astrodome.

Now the heavyweight division is in disarray. Foreman is the new king and will call the shots. Neither Frazier, who insists he wants a rematch, nor Ali, who is waiting in the wings, is in his immediate future.

"I am not thinking about any big fights now," he said afterward. "I want a long rest. I want to go home and see my new daughter."

"After that, I want to go all around the country—to Houston and cities like that—and talk to kids. I want to tell them they can do anything they want if they try. I am an example."

Maryland stages 105-76 win over Wake Forest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

They struck up "Hail To The Chief" as usual when Lefty Driesell strolled into the arena, but the Maryland basketball coach got some sour notes along with it.

"Losing never does anybody any good," said Driesell, referring to boos he heard Monday night.

Driesell, who hasn't been too popular at College Park lately because of a recent crucial loss to Atlantic Coast Conference colleague North Carolina State, regained some of the popularity after Monday night's 105-76 victory over Wake Forest.

"We've been tight and scared in the last two games since losing to State," said Driesell, referring to a two-point loss at home to the Wolfpack two weeks ago that ended Maryland's unbeaten season.

Maryland, ranked No. 2 at the time, dropped to No. 3 in favor of North Carolina State. This week, the Terps are placed No. 4 in the Associated Press' latest poll—giving way to another ACC team, North Carolina.

In the other games involving ranked teams, No. 6 Indiana stopped Michigan State 97-89; No. 9 Alabama tripped Georgia Tech 89-83; No. 12 Southwestern Louisiana turned back Arkansas State 119-106; No. 13 Jacksonville blasted East Carolina 100-61 and 20th-ranked Purdue downed Wisconsin 66-59.

Maryland lost most of an 18-point lead, then exploded for 14 points during a two-minute span midway through the second half.

Tom McMillen, who led Maryland with 27 points, scored six during the string while Jim O'Brien and John Lucas added four apiece. Tony Byers poured in 30 points for Wake Forest.

Elsewhere, Duquesne stopped Notre Dame's five-game winning streak with an 81-72 triumph over the Fighting Irish; St. Louis took a 63-56 overtime victory over Southern Illinois; Vanderbilt nipped Kentucky 76-75; South Carolina ripped DePaul 84-66; Florida turned back Louisiana State 73-70 and Georgia defeated Auburn 68-64.

Whistle-tooter Alston works with a flourish

By MIKE FLYNN

Record-Herald Sports Editor

Referee Bob Alston, who twists his face into a Don Rickles caricature almost every time he makes a call, has become something of a folk hero around Ohio high school basketball circles.

Most officials struggle through their whistle-toting duties with relative anonymity. But Alston is a Richard Burton in sneakers.

Alston's calls probably produce the stoniest fan-player reaction of any referee in high school basketball. Not because they are bad, but because they are delivered with such dramatic flair and confidence.

WHEN ALSTON whistles play to stop, even the fans in the cheap seats know which player has committed the infraction and why. Fearless is too pale a word to describe Alston. One of a kind is more accurate.

Alston, who hails from Hamilton and is a nephew of Los Angeles Dodger manager Walter Alston, has become quite popular around the South Central Ohio League with his unique and flashy techniques this winter.

He officiated in Washington C.H.'s 60-54 upset win over Circleville Jan. 5 at the WSHS gym and was also a referee when the Blue Lions lost to Wilmington Dec. 8.

To the fans, most referees are like a line of motorcycles would be to a bunch of old ladies. The ladies might know they're motorcycles, but they couldn't give you the manufacturer's name.

Around high school basketball, especially the SCOL, they all know Bob Alston.

Hadl, Tilleman and Unitas on pro football move list

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The pro football travel business picked up Monday with Johnny Unitas bound for San Diego, Mike Tilleman heading for Atlanta and John Hadl apparently waitlisted on a flight to somewhere in National Football League country.

Unitas, Baltimore's 17-year super quarterback but victim of a youth movement last season, was sent packing from the Colts to the San Diego Chargers for what Baltimore General Manager Joe Thomas called "future considerations." He declined to elaborate.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Bob Burkholder, top assistant to Ohio State University basketball coach Fred Taylor, will handle the reins for the Buckeyes Saturday at Purdue while Taylor remains hospitalized.

A spokesman at Riverside Hospital said Monday the 48-year-old Taylor's condition was improving and that he has been removed from a coronary care unit.

Vietnam shadow cast pall over Johnson presidency

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the beginning of Lyndon B. Johnson's presidency, Vietnam was a shadow on his horizon. At the end, it cast a pall ranging far across his administration. "The strain of prolonged engagement in a distant war stirred deep controversy among our people," Johnson said later.

"The war created or deepened divisions—between the President and Congress, between 'doves' and 'hawks,' between generations ..."

So it was in a Vietnam speech, March 31, 1968, announcing a scaleback of the U.S. air assault on North Vietnam in a move to promote peace negotiations, that Johnson dropped his ultimate political bombshell:

"I shall not seek, and I will not accept, the nomination of my party for another term as your president."

Johnson's deep disappointment shows in his memoirs, "The Vantage Point." He wrote:

"I regretted more than anyone could possibly know that I was leaving the White House without having achieved a just, an honorable, and a lasting peace

Johnson rights commitment tardy, but deep-seated

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — "We Shall Overcome." The words of the civil-rights anthem rolled out across the nation in the distinct tones of the South. Lyndon Johnson of Texas was telling America to live up to its promise of equality.

The commitment to civil rights for blacks came late to Johnson—he had once voted against an anti-lynching law. But, when it came, it came with all the strength, cleverness and stubbornness that was in him, and there was plenty of all three.

And it stayed. When he stood before Congress and in front of television cameras in 1965 to say "we shall overcome," he was not spouting rhetoric convenient for a Democratic party leader.

In one of his last public acts, former President Lyndon Johnson stood on the steps of the library he had built as a monument to himself in Austin, Tex., to say America still owed its blacks what they deserved as a birthright—equality.

"To be black is not to stand on level ground," he said last Dec. 12, nearly four years past the time he needed to be concerned about acceptance.

But he was concerned; enough to Property damage crashes reported

Three minor accidents were reported in the city-county area Monday, causing only slight property damage and no injuries.

Accidents were:

POLICE

MONDAY, 6:56 a.m. — Helen E. Milstead, 57, of 1012 Yeoman St., lost control of her car as she turned at the Elm Street - Yeoman Street intersection, and collided with a utility pole. She told officers windshield wipers had quit just before she turned and she was unable to see clearly; damage moderate.

SHERIFF

MONDAY, 1:30 p.m. — a car driven by Mary C. Keller, 72, Zanesville, was backing on the lot at Hixon's Sunoco, Ohio 38 and I-71, and collided with a gas pump; damage minor.

MONDAY, 11:50 p.m. — A minor mishap on the Garner Union 76 lot, U. S. 35 and I-71, involving trucks driven by Michael Moore, 30, Rockledge, Fla., and Robert A. Shisslak, 42, Ligonier, Pa.; damage slight.

in Vietnam."

At the start, when Johnson stepped into office in November 1963 following John F. Kennedy's assassination, Vietnam admittedly was a difficulty. Kennedy had sent 16,000 U.S. troops there, largely under the label of advisers and technicians, Johnson was to swell the force to some 540,000.

In his first hours in the White House Johnson was briefed on foreign affairs. While South Vietnam "gave me real cause for concern," he recalled, "compared with later periods, even the situation in Vietnam at that point appeared to be relatively free from the pressure of immediate decisions."

In the presidential election the following year Johnson rated himself as a Vietnam "peace" candidate as against his more militantly anti-Communist Republican opponent, Barry Goldwater. Johnson won the election in a landslide.

Yet various plans already were under way within the administration, as the secret Pentagon papers later showed, for more forceful action in the Indochina conflict.

WCH youth to study in Rome, Italy

Jonathan C. Sauer, son of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Sauer, 504 E. Market St., will be among 41 college students studying in Italy this spring on the Rome Campus of Trinity College, Hartford, Conn. The spring semester program begins with the students' departure Wednesday from Kennedy Airport in New York.

The Trinity College Rome Campus is situated on one of the original seven hills of Rome, overlooking the Tiber on one side and Circus Maximus on the other. Many opportunities for enjoyment of Roman life, the cafes, little shops, picturesque flea market, the Colosseum, Forum and Palatine Hill all are within walking distance.

Students are housed in dormitory-style quarters of a renovated convent. The program is under the direction of Dr. Michael R. Campo, chairman of the Department of Modern Languages and Literatures at Trinity, and in past years arrangements have been made for various cultural and recreational activities for the students, such as spending a weekend harvesting grapes in a nearby vineyard or meeting with Italian students at the University of Rome.

This is the third year the Rome Campus has been in operation and this year's program will end May 13.

In India, even men from neighboring villages may not understand one another. Indians speak more than 800 languages and dialects.

The management training course relies on Landmark personnel as resource people. The program covered management techniques such as cost accounting, communications, personnel training and supervision, production planning and sales. All of the operating divisions in the regional were also explained in detail as a part of the course.

All 1972 officers were re-elected at the fourth annual meeting of the Paint Valley Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board held at Wardell's Party House.

Retaining their officers are: Robert Shanks, Highland County, chairman; Dr. Robert Frazier, Pickaway County, vice chairman; Miss Martha Cottrill, Ross County, secretary, and Mrs. Lewis Dixon, Pike County, treasurer.

Other members of the board are: Dr. William Myers and Richard Fisher, Pickaway County; Dr. James E. Rose, Mrs. Jean T. Craig and Mrs. Jane Mossberger, Fayette County; Dr. W. W. R. L. Sayre, Waverly, is executive director.

The board serves a five county area with a population of 175,000 and is responsible for planning and implementing mental health and mental retardation services and programs. In addition to the Board's financial and administrative responsibility to the Scioto - Paint Valley Guidance Center, it is responsible for the Drug Abuse Education Program, Continuing Education Program, which is contracted through Ohio University, Guidelines for Child Behavior, aired Monday through Friday on local radio stations. These programs are available in each of the five counties that the board serves. It was noted by Sayre that the only Continuing Education Program for the staffs of the Training Mentally Retarded in the State of Ohio was in operation by this board, in conjunction with the county Mental Retardation boards.

Dr. Paul McAvoy was the speaker at the meeting. He pointed out some of the goals of the Department of Mental Health and stated that the designs of the department were geared to the community based programs. The new district concept was presented, which will be implemented in the near future. The state will have 10 uniform districts for all service providers and planning agencies.

Heavy air strikes flown despite rumors of peace

SAIGON (AP) — Despite reports of an impending ceasefire, U.S. bombers hammered North Vietnamese positions across South Vietnam with the heaviest strikes in five months today and Monday.

Military sources said it was part of a combined allied effort to minimize an expected Communist land grab.

U.S. fighter-bombers carried out 374 strikes and the big B52s added another 80 during the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. today, U.S. officials said. It was the largest number of strikes since Aug. 22, when 375 were reported.

South Vietnamese military sources said captured Communist documents and reconnaissance indicated that enemy troops and supplies are moving from the Cambodian border southward along the Saigon River corridor toward Saigon.

The main staging area was said to be the Michelin rubber plantation, 40 miles northwest of the capital, where South Vietnamese forces suffered nearly 400 casualties in the past week.

Fighting was reported to have tapered off in the area, but field officers were anticipating renewed attacks.

Other North Vietnamese forces were said to be moving from the Cambodian and Laotian borders toward the major cities of Pleiku and Kontum in the central highlands.

More than half of the U.S. fighter-bomber strikes were in the northern quarter of South Vietnam, where Hanoi's troops are trying to hold on to a 10-mile strip of land below the demilitarized zone which they seized during the Communist offensive last summer.

Scattered fighting was reported across South Vietnam from the DMZ to the Mekong Delta. The Saigon command said the enemy launched 52 attacks during the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today. Field reports said an enemy company tried to infiltrate a hamlet 20 miles northwest of Saigon but withdrew after a 30-minute fight with the local militia.

Rhodes real estate license object of investigation

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— State officials have promised to investigate reports that former Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes and several Rhodes associates received real estate broker's licenses under unusual circumstances in the waning months of the Rhodes administration.

Rhodes denied any impropriety in the matter, noting, "My conduct has always been honorable...My actions, publicly or privately, are an open record and an open book."

Current State Commerce Department Director W. Dennis Shaul promised to investigate the reports, however, calling the situation "astonishing." The Ohio Real Estate Commission, which issues the licenses, is a part of the commerce department.

Rhodes' license was issued on Jan. 7, 1971, four days before he left office and only three days after he applied for the license, although state law calls for a 30-day waiting period.

Similar licenses were issued between Jan. 7-12 to former Commerce Department Director J. Gordon Peltier, former Development Department Director F.P. Neuen-schwander, then-gubernatorial aide Roy Martin and former Motor Vehicles Registrar Fred Rice.

Although no test score sheet is in Rhodes file, the former governor said that he was administered a special oral examination in the governor's office before the license was issued.

He said three commission members were present for the examination, although only one, former Commission President John H. Pace, said he remembered the special test.

Paul J. Everson of Cleveland, still a member, said he wasn't present for any test, and former Commissioner

P.G. Graves of Cincinnati said he couldn't remember being there. The commission's executive secretary, Vernon B. McMillen, also denied he was present at any such test.

Normally, the test is administered to scores of applicants at the same time, and McMillen said he knew of no case where an oral examination had been substituted for a written one.

But McMillen said that Neuen-schwander, Martin and Rice did take "special examinations" administered privately at the commission headquarters, while Peltier said he took the examination in his office by himself.

Rhodes, who has headed the industrial development firm of James A. Rhodes and Associates in Columbus since leaving office, said that he had not done any real estate brokerage business in the state since receiving the license.

They'll Do It Every Time

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

It Is Not a Venereal Disease

Is "trench mouth" a venereal disease?

Mrs. H. J., R. I.

Dear Mrs. J.: Vincent's disease, or "trench mouth," is definitely not a venereal disease. It is not related to syphilis or gonorrhea, the two venereal diseases that now are reaching epidemic proportions.

Trench mouth is a disagreeable, painful infection of the margin of the gums. It may also involve the mucous lining of the throat, and even the tonsils.

A variety of germs may be responsible for this condition, which is so often associated with poor hygiene, nutritional disturbances and debilitating diseases.

Although trench mouth is no longer considered contagious, it still is wise to avoid contact with those who are suffering from this condition.

Occasionally, lowered resistance following severe illness or emotional distress may lower body resistance and allow the fusiform bacteria to invade the tissues of the mouth.

Smoking has been indicted as a possible added reason why Vincent's infection persists.

The disease, especially in the acute phase, responds quickly to antibiotics after the correction of the local problems in the gums by the dentist.

A big storm is brewing in our house. Our twin daughters want to become nurses. They are now in the third year of college.

My husband is adamant because he insists that nursing is a difficult and menial occupation. How can I convince him that the girl should be allowed to make their own choice?

Mrs. A. T. T., Iowa

Dear Mrs. T.: The profession of nursing is a venerable and highly dignified one. Nurses play a vital role in the total structure of the health team. They are trained to become invaluable forces in the patient's eventual recovery from illness.

Their psychological insight and sensitive awareness of one's emotional needs support their patients during the turbulence of a hospital experience.

As a physician who is in daily contact with nurses, I find that their contribution to the destiny of my patients is enormous. It is true that some of the obligations of the nurse may be considered "menial," but this is a trivial part of the total structure of nursing. The physician, too, has tasks that are not glamorous, but none of these detract from the gratification implicit in caring for and curing the sick.

A visit to any one of the fine hospitals in your city and a frank discussion with the Supervisor of Nursing will give your husband real insight into the vast horizon of nursing.

The profession of nursing is filled with opportunities for advancement and economic security, but more especially with the satisfaction of contributing to the health and happiness of other human beings.

Opening lead - two of diamonds.

A shrewd defender makes all kinds of assumptions about the location of the unseen cards. He does not see partner's or declarer's hand, but, in order to locate the best method of defense, he tentatively assumes where some of the missing cards reside.

The governing principle in making such assumptions is that you don't assign to declarer cards that make the contract impregnable, if it is at all possible for partner to have them. On the contrary, you always assume that partner has the high-card strength or distribution that will lead to declarer's defeat.

Consider this case where West leads a diamond. East takes the ace and the problem is what to return.

The proper return is a low heart, but, before discussing the question of why, let's first examine the effect. West puts up the king and dummy wins with the ace.

It doesn't much matter what declarer does next; he is bound to go down one. If he tries a trump finesse, West takes the king, returns a heart, and that finishes declarer off. If East returns anything but a low heart at trick two, South easily makes the contract.

East's goal at the start is to score four tricks for the defense. In attempting to meet this goal, he cannot afford to credit South with the king of hearts, for, if declarer has that card, it becomes impossible for East-West to take four tricks.

Hence a heart return by East at trick two is a must. He cannot do better than hope that West has a trump trick in

Contemporary critics declare that McGUFFEY'S READERS are "too hard" for today's children. Get that, "too hard"! 'Twould appear that what these experts are saying is that today's "look-say" method of "education" has made our children so intellectually soft that they find the standard reader of the one room schoolhouse too hard. In these readers the English is precise, supple, rhythmic; it communicates and it delights. There is discipline about the alphabet, about phonetics, vowels and consonants, the sounds of vowels and symbols for the sounds, about dipthongs, about articulation and enunciation, about punctuation and emphasis. In the words of poet E. Merrill Root, "The McGUFFEY'S READERS do children the honor and grace of regarding them as responsible minds and responsive souls."

From the Primer to the Sixth Reader these books have much to offer yet today. Many of the best private schools still use them as a basic text. Here at our shop we sell many of these readers. Some people buy the set, and some buy them one at a time. Of the private schools using McGUFFEY'S READERS today, many are near our large universities and educate the children or their faculties. Seems strange, doesn't it, that these people want their own children to have the advantage of these great books, but they would be the first to say NO to their use in the public schools. Yes, I know, "too hard" for the masses. Know what I think? I don't think the kids of the masses are as stupid as these intellectuals in their ivory towers think they are. Maybe we could get someone to write a modern counterpart, bring McGuffey up to date, but retain the quality and beauty of the original. How about that?

Yes, we try to keep all of the McGUFFEY READERS in stock at all times. If you want to bridge the generation gap sometime come in and get one and find out what it was that made your dad, or your granddad tick. I'm sure you will respect them more, and you may learn more than you think.

Court News

DIVORCE ASKED

Martha E. Robinson, Staunton-Sugar Grove Rd. has filed suit for divorce in Common Pleas Court from Jack R. Robinson, 624 Columbus Ave., on grounds of neglect of duty. The parties were married Nov. 24, 1972 at Newport, Ky., and have no children, according to the petition. The plaintiff asks a divorce judgment, that she be granted all household goods, free from any claim of the defendant, temporary and permanent alimony, attorney's fees and that she be restored to her former name of Martha E. Lindsay.

CASE DISMISSED

The divorce action brought by Robert Lee Yarger, 752 High St., against Lora Jean Yarger, 527 E. Paint St., has been dismissed on motion by the plaintiff and the defendant's oral motion to withdraw her answer and dismiss a cross complaint.

JUDGEMENT ASKED

Paul Glaze, Rt. 1, New Holland, has filed suit in Common Pleas Court against the Home Insurance Co., Columbus, seeking a judgment of $5,800.

The petition states that the plaintiff purchased a fire and casualty insurance policy from the defendant Feb. 3, 1971, insuring the plaintiff's farm buildings, equipment and farm machinery. One of the items insured was a 1967 Oliver self-propelled combine.

On Nov. 6, 1972 while the combine was being operated to harvest soybeans, the machine caught fire and was destroyed.

The plaintiff alleges he immediately notified the defendant of the claim that the defendant breached the insurance contract and has failed to adjust for the damages.

Arrests

POLICE
MONDAY — Densil F. Murphy, 50, Cannon, Ky., disturbing the peace by intoxication.

Man hitches ride . . . in wrong car!

A 50-year-old Kentucky man "hitched" a ride with a city police cruiser Monday night and received a free trip to the local lockup.

Capt. Charles Foster said he had been dispatched to S. Fayette Street to investigate a complaint of a drunk when a man stepped out into the street off the S. Fayette Street bridge with his thumb out, and attempted to hitch a ride. Capt. Foster obligingly stopped and asked the man to get in the car, but instead of taking him to his destination he was taken to police headquarters and charged with disturbing the peace by intoxication.

Foster said a passing motorist had reported the man, Densil F. Murphy, of Cannon, Ky., walking in the street a few minutes earlier.

Police also investigated a shoplifting incident at the P & Q Shoe store, Washington Square, Monday evening. Louise Williams, a clerk, told officers that a man and two women had entered the store just before closing and one of the trio had taken a pair of men's shoes valued at $10.87.

Long agenda awaiting City Council

Fifteen ordinances, three resolutions, a public hearing on a rezoning matter and a joint meeting with the Union Township Board of Trustees for reorganization of the Washington Cemetery board are on the agenda for City Council's regular session Wednesday night.

It is the longest agenda in the memory of present city officials.

The joint meeting with Union Township officials will precede the regular order of business and will include the annual cemetery report and the selection of a new cemetery board. Present members are Jack Cabbage, representing the township trustees; Joe O'Brien, representing Council, and Sam Parrett, member at large.

Heading the list of ordinances, all but one of them carrying emergency tags, are legislative measures adopting an integrated table of rates and salary ranges for city employees and assignment of classifications and pay ranges. Pay scales vary, but the average overall increase is approximately 5.9 per cent. The last increase a year ago was less than 3 per cent.

RELATED ordinances would establish and overtime policy and authorize overtime payments and fix compensation for the city auditor, the Municipal Court clerk, the deputy court clerk, the city waste treatment plant superintendent and the city manager.

Other ordinances designate James A. Kiger to continue as city solicitor; authorize the city manager to employ Glenn Tatman as city inspector (building, electrical, zoning, etc.); authorize payment to Kirk's Furniture for installation of carpeting at the new city offices; authorize payment of 1973 landfill dumping fees to the Fayette County Board of Commissioners; authorize the city manager to contract with the Hartley Oil Co. and the Union Oil Co. for furnishing gasoline to the city.

COUNCIL, which already has authorized the vacation of a portion of an alley adjoining the Marting Manufacturing Co., will act on a replacement ordinance correcting a description of the alley which previously had been designated as a part of the "Company's Addition". The correct name is Washington Improvement Co. Addition.

Also on the agenda are resolutions of appreciation to the Sertoma Club and Paul Winterbotham for work on Christmas Park and a resolution endorsing the establishment of a technical college on the Laurel Oaks Career Development Center campus.

A public hearing will be held on an application filed by Heber Deer asking that lots 62 and 63, Elmwood Addition, at the corner of Leesburg and McKinley avenues be rezoned from R-2 (two family) to Rt-3 (multifamily).

Council also will consider an application for a D-5 liquor permit filed by Kathryn E. Hall, doing business as Bert's Bar, 703 Delaware St.

Coal production decline noted

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — The bottom is dropping out of Logan County's coal mines, once the biggest producers in a state that used to be the nation's top coal supplier, and Logan miners are joining the ranks of the unemployed.

Production in the rest of the state rose slightly from 1971 to 1972, but the Logan coal fields produced only 8.3 million tons last year, the lowest since 1915, according to the Logan Coal Operators' Association.

A half-dozen mines were shut down during 1972 and some 900 miners were laid off just in the last two months of the year, the association says.

New loan officer named

First National board re-elected

Members of the Board of Directors of the First National Bank of Washington C. H. were re-elected by shareholders at the annual meeting Monday afternoon and a new officer was named by the board during its organization meeting.

Re-elected to the board by the shareholders were: J. Roush Burton, retired; Walter C. Driesbach, retired; Jack M. Hagerty, real estate; Lowell M. Hayes, Downtown Drug Co.; Harold F. McCord, retired; Emerson Marting, farmer - auctioneer; Donald E. Mossbarger, veterinarian; Willard H. Perrill, farmers; Jesse L. Persinger, farmer; Mark J. Schaeper, builder; Edward C. Vollette, manager, Metal Products Division, Armco Steel Corp., and Albert R. Bryant, president.

Bryant reported to the shareholders that the bank had continued to move forward during the year and that deposits, loans and total resources reached new highs. The local farm income was somewhat affected due to an unfavorable harvesting season, but the general economy of the county remained at a good level and there are ample funds available for further expansion of sound credit in the community in the coming year, he said.

The newly elected board convened immediately following the shareholder's meeting and named the following officers:

49 attend weekly prayer breakfast

Forty-nine were present at the Teen Prayer Breakfast held at the South Side Church of Christ Tuesday morning. "The Gospel is a priceless jewel," was the thought used by the Rev. Charles Richmond at meditation time. Jana Bolender, a freshman at WJHS, led the group in singing.

After breakfast, Bruce Gilmore, a sophomore at WSHS, gave the student devotional on "How to Serve Jesus." Jeff Wallace, a junior, at Washington Senior High School, dismissed the group with prayer.

The next Prayer Breakfast will be next Tuesday at 6:45 a.m.
